The Gift of Jairus to His Wife

By JOHN J. STEWART
Fifth of a Series

Deep sorrow pervaded the elegant home of Jairus, the proud ruler of the synagogue in Capernaum. Jairus' little 12-year-old daughter, his only daughter, lay near death.

In anguish he and his wife sat at the dying child's bedside in the darkened room. All their prayers and efforts to heal her had proved futile. Helplessly they watched as she grew weaker and weaker. They had given up hope.

Suddenly they heard a noise in the street, as if of a large throng of people approaching. A servant whispered that it was Jesus, the Nazarene, with His disciples, passing through the city.

Jesus, the Nazarene! Feared and despised by Jairus and all the priestly class throughout Israel, who were jealous of his great popularity with the masses, and fearful of their own future unless some way could be found to put a stop to Him.

Jairus' face hardened. True, he could find no real fault with the teachings or conduct of the Nazarene. True too, whatever He was, Jesus did have great power of healing. This Jairus knew of a certainty. He looked down at his little daughter, breathing her last. Only for a moment did he wrestle with his pride. Quickly he left the room and dashed into the street, his robes flying as his sandaled feet pounded along the cobbled stones.

Urgently, desperately he pushed his way through the multitude that surrounded Jesus. Dropping to his knees at the feet of the Master, Jairus implored, "My little daughter lieth at the point of death. I pray Thee, come and lay Thy hands on her, that she may be healed; and she shall live."

In compassion Jesus agreed to go with him. But as they neared his house, a servant came running out and told Jairus it was too late, his daughter was dead.

Jesus looked at the proud ruler, his head now bowed in grief. "Be not afraid," He said, "only believe."

They proceeded on to the house, where the servants and others were already making a great tumult with their loud weeping and wailing.

"Why make ye this ado?" asked Jesus. "The girl is not dead, but sleeps."

The hired mourners laughed him to scorn. So Jesus put them out of the house. Then, with Jairus and his wife, and Peter, James and John, Jesus entered the girl's room.

Gently He took her by the hand. "Damsel, I say unto thee, arise."

Millions Coming To B.C. From U.S.

OTTAWA (CP)—British Columbia will get around $420,000,000 from the United States for the block of Columbia River power it is entitled to under terms of a recently negotiated agreement, informed sources said Monday. B.C. is expected to accept the proposal.

The money would cover the estimated $400,000,000 cost of the Columbia Treaty dams and leave several millions over to cover part of the cost of developing domestic power at Mica Creek.

Hostages Freed In Bolivia

LA PAZ, Bolivia (CP)—Nineteen persons, four of them Americans, were released Monday night after being held hostage for 10 days by striking Bolivian tin miners.

The hostages had been held at Catavi, a mining town high in the Andes, in retaliation for the arrest of two union leaders. Earlier Monday, the tin miners voted approval of government terms for releasing the prisoners.

Some miners strongly objected to the release.

JEOP CONVOY

U.S. Ambassador Douglas Henderson, in Oruro about 30 miles from Catavi, said he was informed the four Americans would go to Oruro by Jeep convoy and be flown here this morning. He did not say if the other prisoners were in the convoy.

Before the release of the hostages, a miners' commission took a five-hour trip to verify withdrawal of government troops from the area.

Letters Back To Front

BENNINGTON, VT. (UPI)—The Bennington rescue squad has decided that flashing lights are not enough to attract the attention of motorists to a speeding ambulance.

Neither is the word "ambulance" on the front.

But the "ambulabusa" is just right—if the motorist sees it in his rear-view mirror—it's "ambulabusa" lettered backwards.

Charging cruelty, Sybil Burton yesterday obtained a Mexican divorce from actor husband Richard, paving the way for Burton to marry Elizabeth Taylor. Attorney for Miss Taylor's husband singer Eddie Fisher, met yesterday in New York with Miss Taylor's lawyer to pave way for their divorce. In Hollywood Fisher said, "I will help in any way I can." ## Lumber Label Passes

The Anglican and Roman Catholic communions here have made a unique offer to build a residential teaching college at the University of Victoria's Gordon Head campus. It was announced last night.

Archbishop Harold Sexton, Anglican primate of B.C., made the following announcement after consultation with Dr. Remi De Roo, Roman Catholic Bishop of Victoria:

"As a contribution toward the higher education of students generally and toward the University of Victoria in particular, the Anglican and Roman Catholic communions, after thorough and friendly discussion, desire to provide for and build on the campus a residential teaching college."

RESIDENTIAL FACILITIES

It would be affiliated with the university in much the same way as similar institutions in Eastern Canada, he said.

"In the first instance, residential facilities would be provided for about 100 students, with the hope of subsequent enlargement."

"Common rooms, classrooms, and dining room would be provided and a library would be established to work in association with the university library."

CULTURAL HERITAGE

"The aim of the college, briefly stated, would be to do justice in both curriculum and teaching to the Christian deposit in our cultural heritage," said Archbishop Sexton.

"To this end, the college would offer and teach the usual credit

WASHINGTON (CP)—The U.S. Senate gave quick approval Monday to a bill which would force Canadian lumber to be marked with the country of origin and force most other goods to bear the country-of-origin label each time they are repackaged for sale in the U.S.

The main bill and its lumber amendment won passage on a voice vote. The legislation now goes to the House of Representatives for passage before it is sent to President Johnson for signature.

Stock Deals

Justice, B.C. Man Named Beneficiaries

TORONTO (CP)—An Ontario Supreme Court justice and a former British Columbia government superintendent of brokers were named in court Monday as beneficiaries of deals in the stock of much-investigated Northern Ontario Natural Gas Company.

Mr. Justice Leo Landreville, mayor of Sudbury when the company won a gas franchise there, and J. S. Stewart Smith, the retired B.C. official, were linked to NONG in evidence given at the preliminary hearing of NONG President Ralph K. Farris on three perjury charges.

Vancouver broker John McGraw testified the deals in 1957—before NONG stock was listed on the market—netted the judge 7,500 shares and the B.C. man 600 shares. They were worth between $10 and $15 at the time, now about $17.

A similar transaction was described by McGraw as netting 600 shares for G. Kelly McLean, a nephew of former Ontario mines minister Philip Kelly and at the time an assistant to Farris in NONG.

Escape Gear Didn't Work

OTTAWA (CP)—CF-100 jet planes have been grounded by the RCAF because the escape mechanism for the crew didn't function properly, Associate Defence Minister Carlin told the Commons yesterday. Modifications will take two days.

Two airmen were killed recently at St. Hubert, Que., in the crash of a CF-100. One was injured in a CF-100 crash at the same station last week.

VANCOUVER (CP)—Georgina Rustad, 52, was sent to the penitentiary for eight years Monday for what Supreme Court Justice Harold Meirnes described as the "vicious" and "sadistic" slaying of her 30-year-old mother-in-law.

Before sentence was passed Mrs. Rustad told the judge: "I still plead not guilty my lord."

She showed no sign of emotion as the eight-year sentence was pronounced.

FOUND GUILTY

Mrs. Rustad was found guilty Dec. 5 by all-male jury which brought in a verdict reducing the charge to manslaughter from non-capital murder. She was convicted in the June 10, 1960 death of her crippled mother-in-law, Mrs. Thine Rustad.

The old woman's body was found at the foot of a flight of stairs in her home, her canes crossed over her body. She had been beaten.

"The jury has found that you killed your mother-in-law," said Mr. Justice Meirnes and went on to describe the attack on the old lady as sounds and walking distances, and—in a moment when his eyes were uncovered—spotted the name of a hamburger stand on a wrapper.

Frank Sinatra Sr. had reported Saturday after the case broke that his son provided information on the Canoga Park house where his son was held captive.

Blast Rips Pavement From Under Woman

TORONTO (CP)—A woman was injured Monday when an explosion ripped up 100 feet of downtown pavement beneath her feet. "If it had been rush hour, there would have been hundreds killed," a policeman said. Anne Westley, 38, was treated in hospital for a gashed leg. The explosion was blamed on leaking natural gas.

Thalidomide Spurs Interest In Care

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

There may be some benefits in disguise from the tragedy of thalidomide and the great interest in birth defects.

Many women (although few, now) believe that there isn't need, in pregnancy, to go to the doctor until the baby is about to be born, or unless some trouble develops. This is not good, at times this practice can harm both mother and child.

USUALLY NO SAVING
The reason may be that it will save money not to consult a doctor until along toward the end of the nine months. This reasoning is erroneous, too, because many, perhaps most, physicians tend to make a flat charge for delivering a baby, and the fee includes visits before and after the birth.

The important point, however, is that early care means greater safety.

MANY PRECAUTIONS
For the mother, early care means attention to diet, to added calcium, to control of weight; and in the case of a first baby, measurements to make sure that normal delivery will be possible.

It means watching for disease conditions of which the mother may be entirely unaware, but which may endanger either her or the baby.

It includes precautions against premature delivery. Prematurity not only multiplies the risk of death of a baby but is shown to be associated with about 10 times the frequency of mental retardation.

Since thalidomide, we now have still a further purpose in early prenatal care, such as maximum caution in the use of any medication (or X-rays) which might have a tendency to cause defects in the baby.

We do not, of course, know for certain which drugs can be regarded as absolutely "safe" although we know some which are dangerous.

NO RIGID DIVISION
It may be that no rigid division exists between "safe" and "not-safe" and that circumstances and individual tolerances will make a "safe" drug for one person harmful for another.

We can, at least, avoid the known dangerous or suspicious ones, and make sure that no drugs are used without good reason.

Going to the doctor in earliest pregnancy is the first step.

Dear Dr. Molner: Does dyeing the hair have any effect on the skin? I have heard it is harmful and will make the hair fall out.—M.D.S.

Some dyes may be drying to the hair, making it brittle so it breaks off, but that is not the same as having it fall out. Likewise, some people (and their skins) may be sensitive to organic substances in dyes, so be alert for irritation, rash or the like.

Note to Mrs. J.K.: There are no medications which will dissolve gall stones. However, kidney stones can sometimes be dissolved.

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)—The developing nations joined forces against the major powers last night and pushed through a resolution aimed at giving them more voice in running the UN.

The countries of Asia, Africa and Latin America agreed to enlarge the major UN bodies to provide wider representation for the emerging nations. A Soviet veto on a charter amendment appeared likely.

The special political committee approved overwhelmingly an Afro-Asian plan to add four members to the Security Council and nine to the Economic and Social Council.

Vote on the resolution to enlarge the Security Council from 11 to 15 members was 95 to 11 with 4 abstentions. Vote to expand ECOSOC membership from 21 to 24 was 96 to 11 with 4 abstentions.

A third measure to increase membership of the general committee was approved unanimously. The Soviets repeatedly have stated their opposition to the expansion plan. The Soviet price for expansion of the councils is a seat for the People's Republic of China, one of the permanent members of the security council.

Special Grants For Centenary?

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government has indicated to the provinces that it may make special grants of $2,500,000 each to eight of them for special centennial projects, similar to grants already made or earmarked for cultural centres in Charlottetown and Quebec City.

Provincial delegates were elated at the prospect, which some of them said would finance major works in provincial capitals and serve as "the cherry on top of the sundae" of plans for the 1967 centenary of Confederation.

PARLEY PROPOSAL

Privy Council President Maurice Lamontagne was reported by delegates to have raised the proposal at the closed federal-provincial conference Monday.

Bona Arsenault, Quebec provincial secretary, said his province will sign a federal-provincial cost-sharing agreement the moment the National Centennial Act is renamed by Parliament as the Centennial of Canadian Confederation Act.

FACTS SIGNED

The cost-sharing agreements cover grants of $1 per capita from the federal treasury, to be matched by $2 per capita by the provinces and their municipalities, for projects of a lasting nature. Newfoundland, New Brunswick, Ontario and Alberta signed before the opening of a two-day centenary planning conference.

Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island and British Columbia signed during the course of the conference Monday.

Sales Chief For Bapco Dies at 38

Cyril Leslie Loughnane, a well-known Victoria businessman, died yesterday at 38. Funeral services will be held Wednesday at 1:30 p.m. in McCall's chapel.

Mr. Loughnane served in Canada during the Second World War as a flying officer and joined the British American Paint Co. in 1945. At the time of his death he was general sales manager.

He was first vice-president of the Victoria Sales Executive Club and a member of the Union Club and the Pacific Club.

Eight Years for Killing

"Vicious and cruel in the extreme."

"The evidence clearly disclosed that you nurtured a great hatred for your mother-in-law and the nature of her injuries as disclosed indicate that you gave full vent to that hatred," said the judge.

SEMI-HELPLESS

"The gravity of your crime is aggravated by the fact that your victim was a woman 80 years of age in a semi-helpless condition, dependent for mobility on the use of two canes."

"As a sadistic touch to your vicious assault upon this poor unfortunate woman, you left her two canes in the form of a cross on her back."

He added that the only extenuating circumstance was evidence that Mrs. Rustad was intoxicated at the time of the attack.

During the four-day trial two witnesses testified that Mrs. Rustad had told them she killed her mother-in-law. But they said they kept the confession a secret for three years because they were frightened of their safety.

U.S. Pulls Even In Space Race

LONDON (UPI) — The U.S. rocket due next year, the U.S. may actually be ready soon to lead in space exploration to a measure of equality," the authoritative Jane's all the world's aircraft said today. With its new giant booster

The U.S. success story — a long, tough, expensive, but brilliant comeback from the shock of the first Russian sputnik in 1957 — was highlighted by Editor John W. R. Taylor in the new edition of the famous annual, first published at the dawn of aviation 55 years ago.

Taylor said that although there was "always the possibility of surprises from the Soviet Union, the American effort had reached a stage where the two nations could work together on major projects such as lunar exploration as the basis of equal partnership — as suggested by the late President Kennedy.

MERCURY PROGRAM Taylor said such suggestions were both "timely and sensible" after a year in which Russia had "less success than usual" and the United States exceeded its objectives in the Mercury man-in-space program with the final 23-orbit flight of Major Gordon Cooper in May.

STRANGE COMMENT "This may seem a strange comment to make at the end of a period in which Soviet pilots have established or retained a high proportion of the International Aeronautics Federation-recognized international records, including the absolute speed and free takeoff height records, and in which Soviet rockets have put astronauts, both male and female, into orbit for periods of up to nearly five days.

"But the real measure of achievement in aviation is a day-to-day service, not once-only exploits, and here the Soviet picture looks less self-assured than it did at the end of 1962.

RETURNING FOUR "India is said to have complained that the MIG-21 fighters it bought from the Soviet Union have deficiencies, particularly in electronics, armament and combat radius. Ghana Airways is returning four of its eight IL-18 turbo-prop transports to the Soviet Union, after logging with them an annual utilization of only 250 hours each and passenger load factors of 20 per cent.

"Nor has Russia's space program gone with its customary smoothness and unadorned success.

Millions Cut

Reds Put Butter Ahead of Guns

MOSCOW (UPI) — Russia slashed $600,000,000 from its 1964 defence spending Monday in a record $212,300,000,000 budget for the next two years that put bread and butter ahead of guns.

The largest peacetime budget was presented to parliament for approval by Finance Minister Vasily Garbuzov as Premier Khrushchev looked on approvingly.

BOTH HOUSES

The budget, expected to get unanimous approval Wednesday by the 1,444 members of both houses of the Supreme Soviet, set aside $27,100,000,000 over the next two years for the country's faltering agriculture.

It also provided expenditures of $3,200,000,000 for the next two years to revolutionize the chemical industry, part of a seven-year $46,400,000,000 plan to produce more consumer goods and more fertilizer to end disastrous crop failures.

The budget provided substantial increases in allocations for consumer goods — refrigerators, stoves and television sets — and carried a promise to boost living standards to the 1958 American level by 1965.

FIRST CUT

The 4.4 per cent defence cut was the first since 1960 when defence expenditures rose by 50 per cent, following the U2 plane incident.

The 1963 military expenditures were announced as $15,290,000,000 and Garbuzov proposed $14,630,000,000 for next year. This is 14.6 per cent of the budget as compared with a percentage of 16.1 in 1963.

MUCH HIGHER

However, the Soviet defence figures do not include sums spent on space and rocket research, figures which are included in the much higher U.S. military budget. The U.S. budget also includes aid to foreign countries.

Authorities estimate that if Soviet space and defense research were added to the military expense budget it would amount to about $34,000,000,000.

The budget for the next two years not only was balanced but provided a total surplus of $1,430,000,000. It showed an in-

NEW YORK (AP)—The U.S. defence department has decided to develop a communications satellite system for military use, the New York Times says.

The system of 14 to 20 satellites in random polar orbits of 5,000 to 12,000 miles in altitude probably would begin full operation in 1968.

Johnson Tests Strength

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Johnson undergoes his first major test of strength today when the House takes action on a severely pruned foreign aid money bill.

Battle lines were set during the weekend when the House Appropriations Committee slashed the program to $2,800,000,000 and the president immediately issued a statement charging the reduction would "put our foreign policy in a straitjacket."

Johnson said he could not believe Congress "intends to require the United States of America to follow policies of weakness and retreat."

Scandals Not Over

LONDON (UPI) — Prime Minister Home tried Monday to write the final chapter in Britain's sex-and-security scandal. The Labor Party refused to let it die and hinted more sensational may be uncovered.

"At last this great mass of scandalous rumor can be put behind us," Mr. Home said when debate opened on the Profumo affair report prepared by Lord Denning, the master of the role. The debate did not call for a vote.

Laborite George Wigg, one member of the opposition who brought the affair between resigned war minister John Profumo and call girl Christine Keeler into the open last summer, said he had given Denning several names involved in a number of matters. He demanded assurance that they were the subject of investigation now.

Harold Wilson, leader of the Labor Party, charged former prime minister Harold Macmillan had deliberately turned his back on security aspects of the scandal because he did not want to embarrass the government.

Mr. Macmillan returned to the Commons for the first time since he resigned to undergo surgery for a prostate condition.

Mr. Wilson said Macmillan refused to release the Denning report when it was first available because of an impending conference with the late President Kennedy. He charged the former prime minister with "the most grotesque lack of administrative and ministerial control."

Mr. Macmillan said: "This is a very sad story because a terrible thing has happened. A minister has deceived his colleagues both in the government and in the House of Commons."

Mr. Home, however, was jeered when he used the word "rumor" in his opening statement and said that "the behavior of some of the main characters was frequently reprehensible and sordid but no good would come from raking it all over again."

Barring the Road

THERE IS AMPLE reason to believe at this time that when Premier Khrushchev says the Soviet Union proposes some reduction in its armed forces and its defence spending, he means it. His farm and consumer-goods problems are obviously such as to demand a greater share of the Russian budget, and thus to require military economies or in the parlance of Moscow, "peace-loving steps."

The more peaceful men of the U.S.S.R. apparently resulting in large measure from this domestic preoccupation, and the consequent lessening of tension between East and West, is not to be denied, and may indeed be the harbinger of permanent relaxation. But it would be a mistake to accept the proposed Soviet defence cutback as proof of genuine leadership toward disarmament, the guise in which Mr. Khrushchev seeks to clothe it for external and internal view.

It will be the way the money is saved that will determine whether the reduction in defence outlay is in fact a reduction in martial capability, and whether Russia is making significant cuts, indicative of a real desire for disarmament, is something the West may not be able to determine to its satisfaction.

Mr. Ernest Conine in an article on this page recently noted the difficulties of gauging defence expenditures from the Soviet budget: "Funds for research institutions and scientific education, for example, are reported under 'social and cultural measures'—the latter a $34.5 billion item in the 1963 budget," he said. "Construction of a rocket test base might be tucked away under the $38.3 billion category titled 'financing the national economy.' The same heading might include investment in new arms factories, stockpiling of weapons and production of nuclear materials."

Thus the Russian military cutback may well be in sectors of little or no importance in relation to the continuing hazard of nuclear warfare, and the West none the wiser except through what it can learn from its own intelligence surveillance.

Mr. Khrushchev in further emphasis of his peace-loving purpose says the Soviet Union is ready to make a disarmament agreement today "and if anybody in the West has doubts on this score let him check the sincerity of our intentions."

This the Western nations undoubtedly will do by all means at their disposal. But the great impediment to agreement on a disarmament program has been Russian refusal to permit verification by international inspection. The proof of Soviet earnestness would be to take down this barrier on the road to lasting peace, and some move toward doing so would be much more convincing than Mr. Khrushchev's current pronouncements.

Widely Afield

CANADA'S population is now around the 20-million mark and this is a large and burgeoning country which can stand a steady influx of desirable newcomers, in proportion to numbers which can be assimilated into the work patterns and opportunities available.

This country also offers a fairly wide open door to immigrants from various parts of the world.

One had not thought it imperative, however, to go so far afield as to send travelling teams of immigration officials to places like Lebanon, the Middle East, the Pacific Islands, Central and South America, among other areas, or to open permanent immigration offices in Cairo and Madrid, from whence new settlers would find adjustment to the Canadian scene of some difficulty.

But according to news dispatches from Ottawa a stepped-up program is being geared to attract immigrants in greater numbers than the expected total for this year of some 92,000. The aim is to return to the figures obtaining before 1959, when the annual intake considerably exceeded 100,000.

It is perhaps comforting to note that special attention will be paid to the traditional source of immigrants, such as Britain, France and the U.S.A., whose peoples are of the main stocks from which Canada has grown and developed in the past and whose cultures and ethos enable them to fit more easily into the national society.

It is surprising, and somewhat disquieting, to learn that of the immigrants who entered Canada between 1953 and 1962 only 40 per cent elected thereafter to become Canadian citizens. The others chose apparently to seek a new haven without assuming the responsibilities that should go with their entry. Their children will grow up as Canadians but they themselves fail to do their full duty to the land they have adopted.

It would seem that travelling teams and overseas immigration offices have a job to do to see that the immigrants they accept are of a type and quality to benefit both themselves and Canada once they are brought into the fold of the nation.

The Little Extras

NO ONE IN THIS community is likely to go hungry come Christmas Day, or be without something of the Yuletide cheer that graces the family table on this special yearly occasion.

But it is the "little extras" typifying the prevailing spirit that lift the secular Christmas above the mundane norm of daily times. It is to supply those persons who otherwise would go without that the Colonist's 500 Fund is aimed as in previous years.

As in the past the voluntary donations made to this year's fund reflect the generosity and humane outlook of Victoria citizens. Only a few more days remain before the fund is closed in order that distribution may be made in time for Christmas Day, and we feel sure that once again the closing response will be such as to brighten the 500 families and individuals to whom this Yuletide gesture means so much.

Quick Regret

MR. PICKERSGILL: Would the hon. gentleman permit me to ask a question? Is it not true that at the convention of his party they adopted the idea of the two nations?

Mr. Douglas: If the Secretary of State would possess himself in patience I will deal with that in a few moments. I have all the time in the world, if he has, so we could continue this debate indefinitely.

Mr. Pickersgill: I regret already having asked that question.

Mr. Douglas: . . . I will certainly deal with this at greater length when I come to the question of the two nations.

Mr. Pickersgill: I withdraw the question.

Thinking Aloud

"... of shoes, and ships, and sealing wax..."

By TOM TAYLOR

IT'S a long lane that has no turning, as the men in blue will be thinking in their ancient Flagerd Street edifice. Now, via the blessing of an enlightened electorate, they can look forward to plusher surroundings when, hasten the day, a new police station is built.

Just a few days ago, a reader browsing in the provincial archives telephoned me to say he had come across, in a Colonialist of the date of July, 1913, the opinion of a Chicago police visitor on the sad state of our local jail and its attendant police facilities.

One look convinced him it was among the worst he had seen.

That look preceded the present police headquarters, but it in turn has become obsolete and outmoded.

And time, happily, keeps marching on. The very next day after my phone call city voters moved to have a building in keeping with their high downtown hopes. Belatedly perhaps but in no uncertain terms.

Victoria these days is on the up and up. Let's keep it that way.

MPs are busy men and this is a big country. Maybe it's hard for some of them to know what goes on umpteen miles from their own bailiwicks.

The other side of the Rockies, for instance.

Anyway, a letter reaching my desk from an Ontario member of the Commons bore an intriguing address, to wit: "Colonial Times, Victoria."

Having become blasé about misapprehensions, wrongfully captioned and the like—after all "What's in a Name?"—I can't say I was too discomposed. Or even that the concept of our establishment was seriously dented.

Errors will occur, you know...

But it does seem passing strange however that an MP—or more pertinently the staff that handles his mail—shouldn't know about the two learned journals emanating daily from our plant. And their separate existence stretching back long before he was born, mind you.

Ah well, maybe it was the Christmas season having its effect.

But I do wonder where from "Colonial Times" was abstracted.

Heard a good joke from a chap who never fails to pop me one apropos my documented heritage.

At least he thought it was a good joke.

An entrant at a fancy dress ball stunned the onlookers by turning up attired in two kilts. He won a prize, too, because—

The judges assumed he represented a "Double Scotch."

You won't find anything about Scotch single or double in the excellent cook book of Muriel Wilson's you can secure from this newspaper at the bargain rate of two dollars.

That epicurean authority was too prudent to mix liquids—other than milk, water, et al, that is—with the teeming and tempting assortment of recipes in her book.

And we are at season of the year when potlucks of persuasive influence are adjudged to be taken with care, especially when combined with our driving.

But I could give you a recipe, you know, if you'd like a seasonal refreshment that alludes down smoothly and doesn't risk affecting you as does the real mackay.

Athel Bruce R. is a nice neater and fairly innocent-like.

So long as you believe in moderation. If you don't, don't ask me about the makings.

Not that I'll be making any myself, as a matter of fact. Still, I like to be of service, and Yuletide being in the air one begins to blossom with kindly feelings.

Alas, what a pity we can't keep the goodwill pass up from one Christmas to another.

Braced for a Storm

By RICHARD JACKSON
Colonist Ottawa Bureau

OVER the past several years feelings have run high about the selection of a "distinctive national flag" for Canada.

During that time politicians have spoken frequently on the subject, made several vague promises and done nothing about it.

Suggestions for thousands of different designs (including one in which the word "Flag" on one side and "Drapery" on the other) have been sent to the government to be carefully stored away in the basement of the Centre Block.

The steam of the people seems to be running down now, however—at the wrong time.

The present government has finally not only promised to do something about a flag and national anthem, but is on the verge of doing it.

Legislation will come soon, but few people are paying any attention. There is no spate of flag designs in the mail, no rush of suggested new lyrics for "O Canada" or any other song.

Perhaps this quiet has led the government to screw up its nerve and bring forward its own suggestions.

And from what can be discovered of the suggestions, there should not be any great shock to most Canadians.

Rumor has it that the familiar Red Ensign will be the flag, perhaps with a bit of modification.

As it stands (or flies)—a red background, with the Union Jack at upper left and the Canadian coat-of-arms in the fly—It makes no recognition of Quebec.

So take out the coat-of-arms and substitute a large fleur-de-lis of some color (maybe green) and it covers the country.

A complete departure from anything of the past could throw the country into turmoil, many politicians think. Even those from Quebec.

Complete abandonment of the Red Ensign would grievously wound the Royal Canadian Legion, and those politicians have often been amazed at how many veterans and their families cast votes.

So make the slight change and there you have it. Some complaints will be heard from diehards who want to salute some strange device, but the majority would be reasonably satisfied and no government could ask much more.

The same line could be followed—and probably will—with the national anthem.

"O Canada" is not only recognized by all Canadians of all languages, it is recognized by most countries in the world.

In effect, it has been our national anthem for a long time and government thinking now is that it should continue to be.

It doesn't even require any change, because there already are full versions in both English and French, known and liked by both language groups.

It is interesting to note, in regard to the flag, that in some parts of Canada a really foreign flag is flown.

In those parts of Quebec which have remained stubbornly English (and there are several) nothing but the Union Jack is flown.

This, of course, is the national flag of Britain, and no other country, and it is easy to suspect that those who fly it are more English than Canadian. Certainly they are not French-Canadian.

Just as it is possible to find in Quebec the most stubborn French—those who would have the province secede and join France; so only in Quebec can one find the most stubborn English—those surrounded by French-Canadians, but descended straight from original Englishmen and who still feel England owns this country.

Both extremes are wrong, but it is groups like this which will raise the greatest protest against any new national flag which does not wholly meet their views.

So the government has committed itself and is bracing for the storm, which in the end may just look like a tempest in a teapot, as it has for years.

Perhaps the people of Quebec would be less eager to get out of Canada and back to France if they all experienced what some of their members of Parliament did a few weeks ago.

There were eight Quebec MPs who went to Paris with the NATO Parliamentarians' Conference.

They were eager when they started and eager when they landed, but two days in Paris soured them on France for life.

It seems they were taken by the sophisticated Parisians as "provincials," the people of the French provinces, and they were treated accordingly.

Restaurant waiters gave them arguments instead of meals. Subway operators shoved them around. Store clerks ignored them or pretended they could not understand them.

All were ready to go home at short notice. Several switched to English and were treated better. None came home happy.

The one thing they all forgot to do was tell the people of that city they were Canadians, for Canadians are among the best-liked visitors to Paris.

They became angry instead, and their feelings probably were summed up by a French-Canadian newspaper reporter travelling with them:

"I don't know when France will go to war again or who will be fighting her, but I'll be on the other side."

The Soviet approach to peace is, by contrast with Mr. James', extremely crude: "We are for peace; our enemies are against peace; therefore if you are for peace you are also for us." It is all too often the line of thought here. Mr. James, however, thinks in terms of practical—though possibly unfamiliar—methods of making the world a little safer. At the Soviet-U.S. conference in Geneva to discuss the hostage scheme, the U.S. will be represented by two academics who, in Mr. James' phrase, are "the tops in conflict resolution."

Mr. James also occupied himself with a little lobbying of Soviet opinion makers. One Soviet journalist as a result called him an idealist: a Pravda commentator showed interest; and a grades union official was "baffled and then interested."

Anyone who knew a little better how the Soviet Union works might not in Mr. James' place have bothered to fly to Moscow. But this correspondent for one could not help admiring his persistence and wishes he might wake up one day to find a Soviet Stephen James lobbying him over the telephone.

Reply to Newman

In Bitter Black

By MICHAEL WARDELL

(Second part of an article in The Gleason, Fredericton, on Peter C. Newman's book, Remnants in Power: the Diefenbaker Years.)

THE book is a sparkling affair. Fair that is already a best seller, and deservedly; but it seems, in a way, an exercise in schizophrasia. Between the first part of the book and the rest of it there is a marked disconnection of thought and expression. The first part is a masterly historical summary of the formative forty years of Diefenbaker, from his beginnings as a small-town lawyer in the Saskatchewan village of Wakaw, to his becoming prime minister of Canada in 1957.

The remainder of the book is a tirade of denunciation, execration and sarcasm. There are no contrasts of lights and shades; only bitter unrelieved black. Without cease, and almost without exception, everything Diefenbaker did after he formed his first government is criticized and cursed. The extreme emphasis of vilification defeats the author's object, if the denigration of Diefenbaker was his object. The result is so patently biased, so unfair, and so reckless as to defeat its own ends, and bring sympathy to his subject rather than censure. Much of the material is direct reprint from the author's contributions to Maclean's magazine; and this probably accounts for the venom. For Maclean's has become a scurrilous purveyor of the poison-pen, as all will agree who read the recent article on Fredericton by its contributor, Muggaridge. Newman even demands to petty spite.

"In the TV studios," he writes, "Diefenbaker advised producers on how he wanted to have his face lighted, and fretted about the angle from which it would be shot." What madness for a prime minister NOT to worry about television technique! And Newman goes on to tell of an anonymous newsmen, walking with the prime minister from his office to the Chateau Laurier Hotel, who "noticed that the prime minister managed to spot every amateur camera pointed at him and contrived to give each of them his favorite angle—just off full face." It appears, from the account, that the prime minister was talking to the reporter all the while. Could a jibe be cheaper? Or sillier?

"When reporters insisted on prying backstage into his regime," continues Newman, "he sincerely convinced himself that this behavior amounted to an unpatriotic conspiracy, probably Liberal-inspired." And how right he was. Let us quote Peter Newman, not from his book this time, but from Maclean's magazine, and from an article that is reprinted in a large extent verbatim in the book, but excluding this passage. It describes how he, the author, was flying to Fort William, Ont., in the prime minister's aircraft.

This is how Newman repaid the hospitality. He wrote: "I happened to be standing beside Diefenbaker as the cabin doors were being opened. In the risk of time that it took for the man to change into his public self, his complexion was transformed. The imprisoned, gooseberry eyes retreated into their sockets, the taut face relaxed and changed color. Suddenly he was aware of the crowd's most subtle moods."

This sort of reportorial treatment was hardly conducive to fostering cordial relations between prime minister and pressmen. Newman writes: "Mr. Diefenbaker eventually strained his relations with accompanying reporters so badly that, as he climbed on the prime minister's aircraft, Val Sears of The Toronto Star sarcastically remarked: 'To work, gentlemen. We have a government to overthrow.'"

Newman reports: "Diefenbaker felt the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation had a Liberal bias." An understatement, this. I would say, from my own observations, that the CBC commentators were one-sided Liberal propagandists, giving tongue to the most prejudiced, tendentious utterances on every phase of the campaign, invariably referring to Pearson with the tone of pride, Diefenbaker with disgust. It is what Sir John Reith, then head of the BBC in London nearly 40 years ago, used to call "tendentious inflection." I think he invented the phrase.

A technique of denigration frequently used in the book is to refer to an observer, not an unbiased one, but invariably a critic, and have him utter some disparagement; Lucien Carlin, for example, Liberal MP for Richelieu-Verchères, compares Diefenbaker's international behavior to that of a "silent movie hero blasting his way through paper walls and open doorways, and then waiting for applause." Or again, the same witness bobs up to say that Diefenbaker had administered to his greatly esteemed friend and colleague Howard Green "an unjustified, uncalled for, and unpardonable repudiation."

In a lighter vein, Newman tells of Diefenbaker's visit to

Sir Winston Churchill. He says: "Churchill himself was impressed by the Canadian visitor, but slightly taken aback when his offer of some rare Napoleon brandy was politely turned down. 'You're a teetotaler!' the grand old man demanded incredulously. 'That's not quite so,' Mrs. Diefenbaker intervened. 'He takes a glass or sherry now and then.' Churchill shrugged and remarked that the worst defeat of his life was the time he lost an election to a prohibitionist."

I heard a different version of the same story from Lord Beaverbrook. Churchill asked Diefenbaker if he would drink. Diefenbaker replied: "I am a teetotaler."

Churchill: "A prohibitionist?" "No," said Diefenbaker, and tried to explain the difference between a teetotaler and a prohibitionist. Churchill turned to Mrs. Diefenbaker and asked for an explanation, and got it.

When the misunderstanding was cleared up, Churchill said: "I understand. You are willing to harm yourself, but not other people."

Mr. Newman gives a long category of Mr. Diefenbaker's political crimes. He expresses his point of view, or what his point of view was at the time he wrote it. Unluckily for him, in certain instances, the winds of time have blown fresh intelligence on these matters into the open. On nuclear arms we have already shown that Diefenbaker was certainly right.

Consider also the controversy on the European Common Market, and Diefenbaker's valiant efforts to bring to England a realization of her Commonwealth responsibilities, rather than cut the ties, jettison the Commonwealth market, and incidentally jeopardize Canadian exports to a value of many hundreds of millions of dollars. I have read the references in the book to Mr. Diefenbaker's utterances on this subject, in London and elsewhere, and find myself in hearty approval now, as I was then. But Mr. Newman wrote his book under the influence of the false doctrine that were being spread across Canada by propagandists at the time. "Despite their sincere pro-British feelings," he writes, "Diefenbaker, Green and Fleming never seemed to appreciate that Britain's application for EEC membership was a desperate effort by the United Kingdom to halt the continuing decline in the country's rate of economic growth, and not, as the Canadian ministers seem to think, a plot to eliminate an obsolescent system of preferential tariffs."

Poppycock, Sir. Your words were written under the spell of an hallucination. The British did not enter the European Common Market, and the British are more prosperous today than they ever were before. The economy is not nearly so buoyant, nor so promising. Prices there are rising, and Britain's position in the world markets is ever becoming more competitive. Diefenbaker was right. You were wrong.

Then again, with what confusion, Sir, (and I am addressing Mr. Newman), with what confusion you wrote your diatribes about the devaluation of the dollar. I see you make poor Alvin Hamilton declare, over and over again, that "the main purpose of the Canadian dollar devaluation had been to raise the external price of Canadian wheat." Exactly the opposite is what he must have said. It was to lower the external price of wheat and other exports, and to receive the same or more in Canadian currency.

What Mr. Diefenbaker and his ministers said in the many passages that you quote has been proved to be good, sound, common sense by that best of all judges, the empirical test, or, if you like, trial and error. Another word for it is history.

In the light of present knowledge, Mr. Diefenbaker and his government and his policies look good. He brought Canada to the highest pitch of production, of exports, of employment, of earnings, farm income and savings reached the highest levels in the history of Canada. Profits of business large and small were higher in 1962 than ever before. Yet the great majority of Canadians paid lower rates of income tax than they did in 1957. Canada surpassed every other nation of the Free World in 1962 in rate of growth and in control of living costs.

Mr. Diefenbaker was defeated. He was the victim of circumstances, and somewhat shady circumstances at that.

If I were a Conservative politician, which I am not—I would stake my faith in Diefenbaker, I would expel the traitors from my party, I would turn my back on the faint hearts, and I would go forward with my trust in the only man who can hope to lead my party to quick victory. And I would bring these great issues to the test next spring.

Today In History

Orville Wright made man's first flight in an airplane near Kitty Hawk, N.C., 60 years ago today—in 1903. He flew 120 feet in 12 seconds, a distance sufficient to assure him and his brother Wilbur that sustained flight in power-driven, heavier-than-air machines was possible. Orville spent much of the later part of his life in research, dying at Dayton, Ohio, in 1918.

1792—The first assembly for Lower Canada opened at Quebec.

1954—The North Atlantic Treaty Organization advised its military commanders to plan on using atomic weapons in the event of Communist aggression.

Reservoir Cracks Second Time

LOS ANGELES (UPI-AP) — Another section of the breached Baldwin Hills reservoir gave way Monday, but this one was only about 10 feet wide and anyway all the water went through the crack which Saturday killed three, hurt 13 and caused more than $10,000,000 damage.

Oil Wells?

Flood Cause Probed

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mayor Samuel W. Yorty has ordered a thorough investigation of why the Baldwin Hills reservoir collapsed.

While water and power commissioners held a Sunday afternoon inquiry session, engineers and geologists speculated privately along two lines.

1. A recent series of minor earthquakes may have caused the pencil-thin crack in the side of the reservoir that was discovered four hours prior to the disaster.

2. The concrete- and asphalt-coated walls of the earth-fill structure might have been weakened by collapse of deep oil pools pumped dry by wells near the site.

The chief engineer of water works for the department of water and power said the reservoir was one of the most advanced structures built in recent years.

With the dam now empty, observers could see a long series of ragged holes in the blacktop surface which extended from one side of the reservoir to the other. These holes, obviously the leaks that caused the wall to collapse, lead in a straight line from one side to the big break in the wall.

Boss Of Year

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A presidential committee Monday named the Caterpillar Tractor Co. as employer of the year in recognition for hiring the handicapped.

Caterpillar has 3,000 handicapped people among 33,000 workers on its payroll. The Peoria, Ill., firm employs people handicapped by loss of one or both arms or legs, loss of one or both eyes, cardiac diseases and loss of hearing or speech and arrested TB.

Investigators continued to probe the cause of the devastating flood (see adjoining story) as heartick homeowners, clean-up crews and even looters moved through the mud-covered area.

Police arrested a score of loiterers and charged some of them with looting.

The giant wall of water from the breaking, earth-filled dam swept blocks of homes away. Only deep, eroded gullies remained where attractive dwellings stood. Sixty-four homes were destroyed and 12 received major damage. More than 100 cars were wrecked.

More fortunate residents picked among the ruins of their shattered homes, hoping to salvage items left behind when the order to evacuate disrupted the tranquil neighborhood. Police patrolled the area heavily to prevent looting.

Burst with Roar

The big 19.5-acre reservoir, owned by the Los Angeles department of water and power, burst with a mighty roar Saturday afternoon after a small leak developed earlier in the day.

Witnesses said a wedge—75 feet at the base—tore out of the asphalt-and-concrete lined wall of the earth-filled dam and the released water shot 50 feet into the air.

The water at first fell into a catch basin several hundred feet below the lip or the dam, jarring the earth as it hit. The 50-foot-deep basin soon was filled and millions of gallons of water raced down a canyon toward the homes below.

A wall of water 30 feet high and 110 feet across swept houses and garages along as it raced downhill and split into several forks.

Wide Damage

The flood smashed through an expensive canyon residential area, hit a garden apartment development, spread through two business districts and another residential neighborhood, then piled into a flood control channel and found its way to the ocean about five miles away.

Up to 10 inches of thick mud covered everything in the path of the water.

Mayor Samuel Yorty has asked Franklin D. Murphy, chancellor of the University of California at Los Angeles, Dr. Norman Topping, president of the University of Southern California, and Dr. Lee A. DuBridge, president of Caltech, to name a board to study the tragedy.

The federal government declared Baldwin Hills a disaster area, making available long-term, low-interest loans for flood victims.

Result Known, Cause Debated

along bottom of reservoir leading to fatal breach is blamed by some for tragedy and earthquakes may have caused it.—(AP Photofax)

Delays Cancellations

Killing Fouls Up TV, Film Plans

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Movie and television schedules continued to get a shaking up in the wake of president John F. Kennedy's assassination.

The tragedy came at a time when the movie companies were making a number of films on political matters, something that Hollywood had avoided in recent years.

PETER SELLERS

Dr. Strangelove, a satirical treatment of an atomic conflict between the Soviet Union and the United States starring Peter Sellers and George C. Scott, originally was scheduled for a premiere last week. It was postponed until Jan. 29 when it will open in New York, London and Toronto.

The Best Man, a study of convention politics, will be out in May and June. It has undergone several cuts of references to the Kennedy's. Henry Fonda is a candidate in this one. Take Her, She's Mine, currently on release, had a few lines about the Kennedy's cut.

Warner's decision to withdraw PT-109 from release has drawn a few complaints from citizens who would like to see the film of the late president's war heroism. But a spokesman pointed out the necessity of advertising and charging admission for the movie would appear to be capitalizing on the tragedy.

Band-aids Bottles 'n' Babes

WINNIPEG (UPI) — A wild weekend party has brought court fines of $50 to Marlene Stevenson, 18, for assault; $20 to Sofia Gwendolyn Ratter, 20, for assault, and $50 to Geraldine Easter, 20, for illegal consumption of alcohol.

Court was told the girls were partying in an apartment when Kenneth Campbell, 19, went by. The girls dragged him in and threw him on a bed. One inflicted a slight laceration to his face with a broken beer bottle.

Two male friends finally got the five-foot-three Campbell out with the girls in hot pursuit pelting them with beer bottles. The girls then got into a fight themselves. Police found the Easter girl wandering about with three six-inch stomach lacerations.

Still They Stream By

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The stream of visitors to President Kennedy's grave in Arlington National Cemetery is continuing despite freezing weather. Thousands visited the grave Sunday while the temperature hovered in the low 30s.

Ruling Monday

Release Ruby Counsel Asks

DALLAS (UPI) — Flashy Jack Ruby sought freedom on bail Monday pending his trial for the slaying of President Kennedy's accused assassin.

Defence attorney Tom Howard filed a writ of habeas corpus with criminal court Judge Joe B. Brown charging the 32-year-old striptease night club owner was being held illegally without bond and that the prisoner could not get "proper psychiatric treatment" in jail. Brown, who has set Ruby's trial for next Feb. 3, granted a hearing on the writ for next Monday.

FIRST APPEARANCE

Ruby will be brought to court Monday from his heavily guarded county jail cell. It will be his first appearance in public since the morning of Nov. 24, when he dashed forward and shot Lee Harvey Oswald as a nationwide television audience watched.

Brown ruled television and press cameras will be barred from the habeas corpus hearing.

Famed San Francisco attorney Melvin Bell, who has won several spectacular injury cases in California, was scheduled to be in Dallas for the hearing as chief defence counsel.

Howard, one of Ruby's six-man legal battery, said he wanted "reasonable" bond for Ruby. He would not specify a figure.

Hollywood Officials Say

Kidnap Trio Minor Leaguers

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Who are the three men accused of kidnapping Frank Sinatra Jr.?

A house painter, a fisherman and a stockbroker's son. Hardly the sort of people you'd enlist as confederates if you were going to pull the most celebrated abduction in a generation.

Yet authorities say these three, all minor leaguers in crime until now, are the ones who spirited the 19-year-old singer from a Mountain Lake resort, released him for $240,000 ransom and landed in jail, all in the space of 126 hours 45 minutes.

HERE THEY ARE

The house painter is 42-year-old John William Irwin, a man with an unspectacular record of arrests dating back 16 years.

The fisherman is Joseph Clyde Amsler, 23, a former navy man and a professional boxer arrested several times for petty offences and married only a month ago.

The broker's son is Barry Worthington Keenan, also 23, an unemployed appliance salesman described by his former wife as a man who lived beyond his means and had "an obsession for money."

FRIENDS ASTONISHED

Friends were astonished, relatives shocked when the FBI dramatically broke its long silence on the case Saturday, announcing that the three men had been arrested, that nearly all the ransom money had been recovered and that no other suspects were being sought.

What do the three have in common, besides their purported craving for easy money?

Keenan and Amsler were classmates at University High School in west Los Angeles. Curiously, Nancy Sinatra, sister of the kidnapped boy and now wife of singer Tommy Sands, was in the same class. She and Keenan were graduated in 1958 but Amsler left school to join the navy.

Others who were in the same class say Keenan and Amsler were good friends. Eugene Giersen, now a medical student, says Keenan knew Nancy "better than most people in the school."

'Hardly the Sort'

Sinatra Sr. said Saturday that his daughter viewed photos of Keenan but didn't recognize him.

Dr. Hyman Giersen, father of Eugene, remembers Keenan as a boy. "He's not the kind of boy to be involved in this. He must have been dragged in by friends."

Amsler's father, electronics engineer Clyde R. Amsler, told reporters that he was "too upset, too disturbed to make a statement at this time."

Derailment Injures 18

LITTLE FORT, B.C. (CP) — A westbound Canadian National Railway train roaring through the early morning darkness in a snowstorm crashed off the rails Monday, sending passengers and luggage tumbling into the aisles.

Most of the 230 passengers on board the 16 passenger cars of the crack Super Continental were asleep when the train came to a grinding halt with 10 of its cars off the tracks and leaning against the side of a snow-covered mountain.

The accident occurred at 1:43 a.m. PST as the train entered a curve. One CNR official said if the derailed cars had gone off the other side of the track they could have plunged down into the North Thompson River below.

Within an hour of the derailment Royal Inland Hospital at Kamloops, 33 miles to the west, had instituted the first phase of a disaster plan. The hospital could have handled 100 patients if necessary.

As it was only 18 persons were slightly injured. The most severe casualty was Bert Murphy of Charlottetown, P.E.I., who suffered a slight relapse of a heart condition because he overexerted himself helping other passengers.

GOOD CONDITION

He was in good condition in hospital.

R. L. Reid of Penticton, Man., on his way to Penticton, suffered a facial cut that required stitches.

"I was sitting there, watching the train pull into a bend," he said. "I even saw the engine and then I flew across the aisle and landed against the back rest of a seat."

"That was all there was to it."

THUMPING UNDERNEATH

A. S. Wood of Vancouver, a trainman, said:

"It all started with a thumping underneath the train and in a moment there were suitcase, baggage and people bouncing all over the place."

"A few people got excited but it was over in just a few moments and everyone calmed down."

Crew and passengers praised each other. The passengers praised the crew for the efficient manner in which they were looked after. Crew members praised the co-operation and calmness of the passengers.

The CNR was still investigating the cause of the derailment but preliminary investigations blamed a split rail.

CLEAR TODAY

A crew of 35 was working on the track and it was hoped that it would be clear today. Meanwhile, eastbound passengers were flown to Edmonton from Kamloops and westbound passengers took buses. A bus took some passengers to Prince George.

Names of Injured Listed by CNR

EDMONTON (CP) — The CNR issued the following list of persons injured near Kamloops. In all cases, cities mentioned are the destination of the person named and not necessarily the hometown.

Mrs. M. Olson, Burnaby, slight cut on head.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Factor, Vancouver, shaken up.

Ruth Messner, Vancouver, stiff neck and sore back.

Mrs. R. Sunderman, Port Alberni, left finger and left ankle cut.

Mrs. S. Surrey, Chilliwack, bruised right lower back.

W. L. Anderson, Vancouver, left ankle bruised.

A. E. B. Murphy, Vancouver, shock. In hospital at Kamloops.

L. Patrey, Fort Langley, slight bump on head.

A. Bakolanyk, Vancouver, sore right hip and left knee.

Baby Hoshowaki, Matsqui, shaken up.

Mrs. J. McMurry, Vancouver, cut on leg.

Herman Vehse, Vancouver, sprained right knee. To be taken to hospital at Vancouver.

Mrs. Hermione Vehse, Vancouver, left arm bruised.

R. L. Reid, Kelowna, cut on left cheek and sore back.

Girl Saves Three From Chilly Lake

VERNON (CP) — A young Kelowna woman rescued three people from the freezing water of Wood Lake Monday after the car she was driving skidded from the highway south of here and plunged into 20 feet of water.

Elaine Marie Dyck, 21, was driving toward Kelowna with Joseph Agostekho, 24, of Kelowna, and Evelyn Beattie, 20, of Winfield, when her car went out of control and plunged into the lake.

FISHING NEARBY

Harry Verbruggen, 53, of Vernon, fishing near the road, was hit by the car and knocked into the lake.

She found Miss Beattie trapped in the floating vehicle, opened a door and pulled her to safety.

The two then rescued Agostekho, a non-swimmer, who was clinging to the car.

From the shore Miss Dyck noticed Verbruggen floating on his back and returned to the water to save him.

Big Church Burns

MOOSE JAW (CP) — Firemen waged a hopeless battle Sunday as a roaring fire reduced the magnificent St. Andrew's United Church to a blackened shell of grey-ash walls. Dr. Hovner Lane, rector of the 20-year-old church, estimated the damage at $1,500,000 and said it was almost fully covered by insurance.

Cheque Thief Jailed

A young Victoria man who stole several company cheques from a Victoria bulldozing firm, and later forged them to raise money to pay a debt, was sentenced yesterday to two years in prison.

Gerald Elmer Young, 728 Hillside, pleaded guilty in magistrate's court to one charge of breaking and entering and theft, and two of forgery.

He admitted breaking into the firm last week and cashing the cheques later, each worth more than $100.

Thieves

Motels Hit Again

For the second consecutive weekend, motel thieves have struck in Greater Victoria, this time escaping with $100 cash from two newly-arrived soldiers.

Early Sunday morning a thief or thieves entered the Royal Victorian Motel, 280 Gorge, and stole $30 from the wallet of Cpl. William Maitland and $70 and a pair of pants from Rlfm. Andrew Kizian.

Both men are members of the Queen's Own Rifles of Canada, taking up duties at Work Point Barracks.

SKELETON KEY

Last week, thieves, apparently using a skeleton key, entered several rooms at the Imperial Inn and escaped with about $7,000 in cash and merchandise.

Police say the two burglaries are probably not related. Elsewhere, Harry Richardson, 3028 Quadra, found his basement door forced Sunday morning but nothing taken. An attempt was also made to enter Haultain Variety Store, 1500 Haultain. A door was partly forced but nothing was taken.

Older Boys' Session Dec. 27

The Older Boy and His Church will be the theme of the four-day Older Boys' Parliament of B.C. at its 33rd session which opens in the legislative buildings Dec. 27.

The parliament comprises three elected members, 15 Anglicans, five Baptists, five Presbyterians, 30 United Church, four YMCA, three others and 30 observers chosen from unsuccessful candidates.

Attending the session will be Brian Smith, 17, of 2925 Lincoln in Victoria. He was one of B.C.'s representatives to the last Canadian Older Boys' parliament.

Choral Group Gives Impressive Messiah

By BERT BINNY

A large audience attended in Christ Church Cathedral for the presentation last night of Handel's Messiah by the Victoria Choral Society.

This oratorio is well known and, if any work is familiar, it is all the harder to bring off effectively.

Despite this, the choral society gave a most impressive performance.

Messiah provides great opportunities for the soloists and all four of those appearing with the choral society took full advantage of them.

Contralto June Gruber's 'He Shall Feed His Flock' was particularly impressive as was Comfort 'Ye My People' by tenor Peter Yelland.

Stanley Martin sang the bass part with fluent ease and soprano Pamela Paver, whose vocal stature is increasing every time she appears, gave dramatic as well as musical effect to her performance.

Unto Us a Child is Born, and, of course, the famous Hallelujah chorus found the society at its best. On occasion one could have wished for slightly more substance in the tenor and bass sections but they are, nevertheless, vastly improved from last year.

Conductor and musical director was Rodney Webster and the accompanist Cathedral organist Richard Proudman. For The Trumpet Shall Sound, Mr. Proudman was joined by symphony trumpeter David Fisher.

Messiah will be sung again this evening, in St. Andrew's Cathedral at 8 p.m.

Loan Legislation Upheld

Lawyers Line Up Loan Suits

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto lawyers are preparing dozens of actions against excessive loan interest rates following a Supreme Court of Canada ruling Monday that Ontario's Unconscionable Transactions Act is valid.

Most of the actions have been in abeyance since the Ontario Court of Appeal ruled in October, 1962, that the act was invalid.

Allan Lawrence, Progressive Conservative M.L.A. for St. George and a member of the legislature's select committee on consumer credit, said the court's decision could mean a widening of provincial credit legislation.

OTTAWA (CP) — The Supreme Court of Canada ruled yesterday in a judgment with far-reaching implications that legislation that has protected Ontario borrowers for 50 years is constitutional.

The court, in a 5-to-2 decision, granted an appeal by the Ontario attorney-general's department against a judgment in October, 1962, by the Ontario Court of Appeal ruling the Unconscionable Transactions Act was invalid.

WITHIN POWERS

"The appeal is allowed, the order of the Court of Appeal of Ontario is set aside, and it is held that the Unconscionable Transactions Relief Act is within the powers of the legislature of the province of Ontario," the majority judgment said.

The court's decision means that while the field of interest is a federal responsibility, a province can legislate to prevent money-lenders from charging excessive interest rates.

The majority judgment, written by Mrs. Justice Wilfred Judson, said:

"In my opinion, it is not legislation in relation to interest but legislation relating to annulment or reformation of contract on the grounds set out in the act, namely, (a) that the cost of the loan is excessive, and (b) that the transaction is harsh and unconscionable."

"The wording of the statute indicates it is not the rate or amount of interest which is the concern of the legislation but whether the transaction as a whole is one which it would be proper to maintain as having been freely consented to by the debtor."

Lectures Planned On Salmon Plans

Fishing and conservation enthusiasts will have a chance Thursday to hear lectures on B.C.'s salmon development program and international relationships in North Pacific Fisheries.

An evening meeting of fisheries lectures will be held in the Prince Albert Room of the Empress Hotel Thursday at 7:30 p.m.

R. E. McLaren, chief biologist of the Pacific area, will review the salmon development program of the department of fisheries.

Roy I. Jackson, executive director of the International North Pacific Fisheries Commission will lecture on international relationships which will include recent developments in fishing in the Eastern North Pacific Ocean by Canada, Japan, the U.S. and Russia, and the present status of international treaties.

Bridge Results

Winners of the regular monthly major prize competition of the Allmarston Bridge Club were: North-South, Paul Smith and Les Stewart, Minna Louner and Freda Smith, Ethel Cleworth and Zuzi Goldie, Mary Fortye and Anne Lewis.

East-West: Virginia Arroyo and Tony Marsh, Lilianne LeBlond and Harry Brown, Dick Lipsey and Joe Lukas, Molly Collins and Walter Allen.

Lot-Split Plan Dies

A proposal for changes in municipal bylaws to permit 33-foot-wide lots has been killed by Saanich council.

Robert Price, of Jupiter Estates Ltd., had applied to council for the changes which would allow duplexes to be sold to dual owners, with each half of a duplex situated on a 33-foot lot.

Council rejected the application, with Coun. Gregory Cook voting against the motion, which was made by Coun. Leslie Passmore and seconded by Coun. Hugh Curtis.

Glass Near Wheat Means Discipline

OTTAWA (CP)—The government will discipline any employee caught with glass near loading operations for wheat, Transport Minister McElraith told the Commons Monday.

He said it was virtually impossible to find out who put glass fragments in each of seven wheat ships bound for Russia and added Russia has not filed any claim for reimbursement.

Special Parley On Retarded Likely in 1964

OTTAWA (CP)—A special conference on mental retardation will likely be held next year under the auspices of the federal government, Health Minister Judy LaMarsh told the Commons Monday.

She said the conference to be attended by provincial representatives as well as other interested groups, would be aimed at drafting a national program to deal with the problem.

DEFER APPROVAL

In reply to Kenneth More (PC—Regina City), LaMarsh said because of the conference it was decided to defer approval for a request from the Canadian Association for Retarded Children for an increase in its federal grant to $62,000 from $5,000.

However, the grant was being raised to $15,000 next year.

NOT TO SMOKE

Mr. More asked whether the request for $62,000 could be considered reasonable in the light of the federal government's $600,000 program to persuade children and teenagers not to take up the smoking habit.

Miss LaMarsh said the $600,000 was for a five-year program and had been authorized after a special conference of government, medical and industry experts on the relationship of smoking to lung cancer.

She indicated that the special conference on retarded children might well result in a federal grant of a similar amount.

Canada Will Review NATO Positioning

OTTAWA (UPI)—Prime Minister Pearson said Monday the government would review the positioning of Canada's NATO forces in light of a statement Saturday by Secretary-General Dirk Stikker.

He refused comment on Stikker's suggestion that, in light of French refusal to allow nuclear weapons on her soil, consideration might be given to moving Canada's eight-squadron air division out of France.

Martin in Paris

Regular Parleys Urged on Arms

PARIS (CP)—External Affairs Minister Martin urged Monday night that disarmament negotiations be made a regular feature of the international calendar rather than a stop-start affair in which much time and effort is lost.

"There ought to be a regular pattern agreed upon," said Martin at a press conference in which he ranged over topics he had discussed in a speech at a closed session of the NATO ministerial meeting earlier.

PARLEYS HELD

At the end of his lengthy press conference, Martin read an eight-line statement in which he said Canada is consulting with France and NATO military authorities on proposals aimed at "more effective utilization of our forces in Europe."

The consultation is believed to revolve around Canada's four NATO air squadrons in France which are being re-equipped with CF-104 nuclear bombers. France has refused to allow storage on its territory of nuclear warheads.

Probe Offered Into Firing Of Prairie Farm Official

HAYS
... judicial inquiry

OTTAWA (CP)—Agriculture Minister Harry Hays offered Monday on behalf of the federal government to order a judicial inquiry into the circumstances surrounding the dismissal of a Prairie Farm Assistance Act official.

The Commons privileges committee immediately accepted his offer. It approved a motion calling for a judicial inquiry which also would examine the payment early this year of assistance to farmers made before PFAA authorities conducted an investigation of "alleged irregularities" in 1952 crop reports used to calculate the amounts of assistance.

TWO DAYS' TESTIMONY

Adoption of the motion by a vote of 17 to 5 followed two days of testimony under oath by Howard Riddell of Regina, PFAA director.

He said he had doubts about the correctness of paying possibly $500,000 in assistance without conducting an investigation of information supplied as a basis for claims.

EFFORTS BLOCKED

Mr. Riddell suggested that Jack McIntosh (PC—Swift Current-Maple Creek) blocked his efforts to make the investigation. He also said he made the payments shortly before last April's federal election on instructions from Roy Faibish, then executive assistant to Alvin Hamilton, at that time agriculture minister in the Progressive Conservative government.

Mr. McIntosh told the committee he welcomes the inquiry and is satisfied that it will exonerate him and George Walker Swift Current, Sask., supervisor for PFAA who was fired last August on Mr. Riddell's recommendation.

Mr. Hamilton objected to the reference in the motion to irregularities, stating that the law required investigation of the basis for the claims and approval of them by the PFAA board of review. These steps had been complied with fully by the time Mr. Riddell had sought a re-examination.

Not Giving Up Says Pearson

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson said Monday he still hopes that the Commonwealth seal will be retained on the United Nations Security Council.

However, he told the Commons that an Australian-New Zealand-Canadian move to ensure this will not be pressed to a vote at the UN, because it obviously would divide the Commonwealth itself.

ANSWERS JOHN D

Mr. Pearson was replying to Opposition Leader Diefenbaker who referred to press reports saying Canada gave up, under heavy pressure, its attempt to preserve a formal Commonwealth role at the UN.

The prime minister began by saying that the current debate on enlargement of various UN councils will not end until Tuesday, and External Affairs Minister Martin may give a complete report later.

Meanwhile, Mr. Pearson said, it does not appear likely that the question of future representation will be solved at this UN Assembly session.

He noted that the Soviet Union has linked the enlargement issue to representation for Red China—"an unjustifiable stand."

Zanzibar Kenya Join UN

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—The United Nations admitted two new members Monday as it worked toward conclusion of the fall assembly session, expected late today.

The flags of Kenya and Zanzibar, newly independent Commonwealth members in East Africa, were raised in front of UN headquarters in New York. The two new members brought the total UN membership to 113.

Secretary-General U Thant read a short statement welcoming the two countries "into the full daylight of independence and sovereign equality."

He said they had acquired the right to make their own history and the heavy responsibility that went with that right.

Thant also praised the "high statesmanship" of Britain in bringing the two countries to independence.

Peterson Pledges Probe

Education Minister Peterson has ordered a scrutiny of selection methods for teacher training candidates with emphasis on moral standard requirements. The scrutiny comes on the heels of the jailing of a Nanaimo teacher for offences against an eight-year-old boy. Demands for an investigation of methods used in screening teacher appointments arose from the incident. Mr. Peterson said a joint board involving his department and the universities deals with teacher training. "I am asking the board to evaluate the method of selection of candidates," he said. Meanwhile, he is awaiting reports on the Nanaimo case from his department and from the attorney-general. The reports could lead to cancellation of the teacher's certificate. Mr. Peterson said teacher applicants from outside the province are required to produce references from their last previous employer before getting certification here. These were produced in the case of the Nanaimo teacher.

MORE THOROUGH
He said he believes B.C. is more stringent and more thorough in investigating the character of incoming teachers than other provinces. The number of incidents, he said, is low and compares favorably with other professions.

Obscenity Issue

Censor Proposal Brings Censure

VANCOUVER (CP)—Attorney-General Bonner has been criticized by two organizations for a statement that prosecutors screen books for obscenity. One of them is the B.C. Parent-Teacher Federation, a delegation from which asked the minister last week for a provincial obscenity board composed of a lawyer, librarian, university professor and sociologist. The board would screen books. Mr. Bonner told the delegation it was not necessary because prosecutors already do this work. The other organization is the B.C. Civil Liberties Association which says prosecutors are not competent to act as literary censors. Michael Audain, a director of the association, says no person is qualified and no person should be allowed to act as a literary censor. "It is up to the public to exercise its taste and prejudices in its own way." President Mrs. G. A. Binn of the PTF says lawyers should not be the only people to fulfill the role of censors. A board was necessary "For it is important to get the views of a sociologist, professor and librarian."

Ship Rate Protest?

B.C. Exports Hit

Trade Minister Robert Bonner yesterday urged B.C. exporters to protest discriminatory ocean freight rates which are barring them from a $1,000,000,000 market in Southeast Asia.

A recent study carried out on behalf of the B.C. trade department shows that in many cases the ton-mile rate between Vancouver and Southeast Asia ports is more than double what it is from European ports to the same destinations.

Mr. Bonner said such rates are privately arranged and the provincial government can do little or nothing to remedy the situation.

But B.C. shippers are free to bargain with the shipping companies and, armed with the new report, now are in a stronger position to do so.

ONLY 4 PER CENT
The trade department report said Canada has only 4 per cent of the Southeast Asia market.

Ocean shipping rates covering the Asian ports are not based upon mileage, the report states. Cost of shipping a unit of plywood from Vancouver to Malaysia is $48 and from Liverpool to Malaysia only $20.42 in spite of the fact that the latter route is 1,100 miles longer. But freight rates aren't the only reason Canada has failed to make much of a mark in Asia, the report continues. Other countries have been more aggressive and have set up better distribution networks.

Canada has a preferential tariff arrangement covering canned fish going to Malaysia but Japan has walked off with 91.6 per cent of the market.

The report says the U.S. foreign aid program has blocked some trade avenues.

The CNR has put its Vancouver hotel under management of Hilton Hotels of Canada in a deal similar to the one in Montreal where Hilton manages the Queen Elizabeth Hotel owned by CNR.

Hilton will manage the Hotel Vancouver on an agreed profit sharing basis with CNR retaining full ownership.

C. C. Chambers, general manager of the CN hotel chain, says the Queen Elizabeth arrangement has worked well and at Vancouver, where convention business is important, it is felt the link with the Hilton chain, particularly in the Western U.S. will be advantageous.

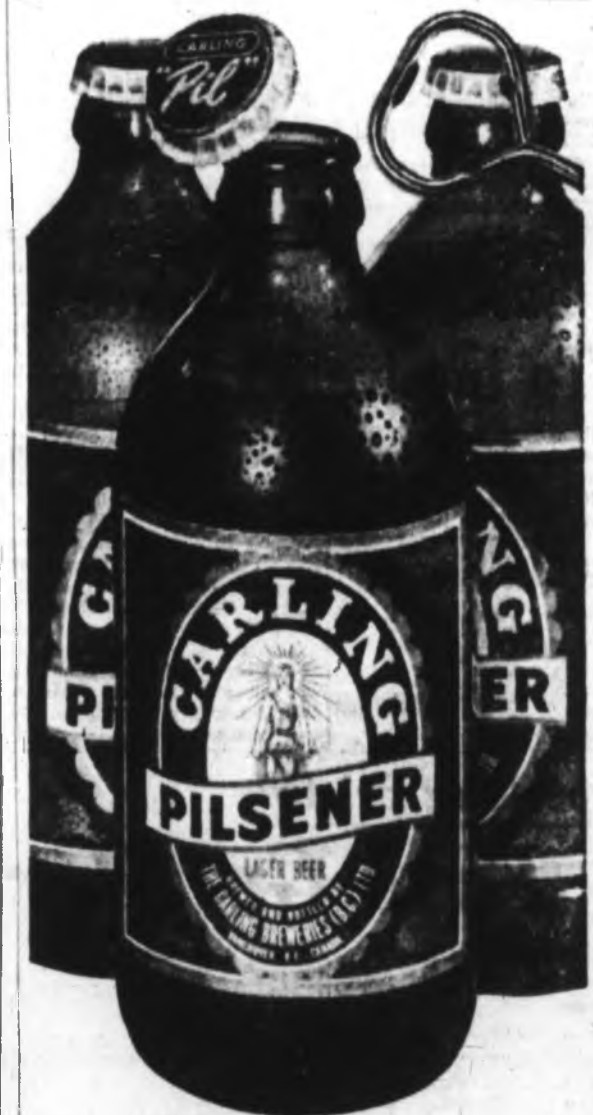

Hilton assumes existing union agreements at the Hotel Vancouver. Major renovations are planned.

STANDARD LIFE record of growth...

BUSINESS INCREASED seven-fold in ten years

New ordinary life assurance business completed by the Standard during the year ended 15th November 1963, the Company's 130th year of operation in Canada, exceeded $120 million — a sevenfold increase in business during the last ten years.

This is evidence of the outstanding results under Standard Life policies and appreciation by Canadians of the sound impartial advice which they can expect from Standard Life salaried Representatives.

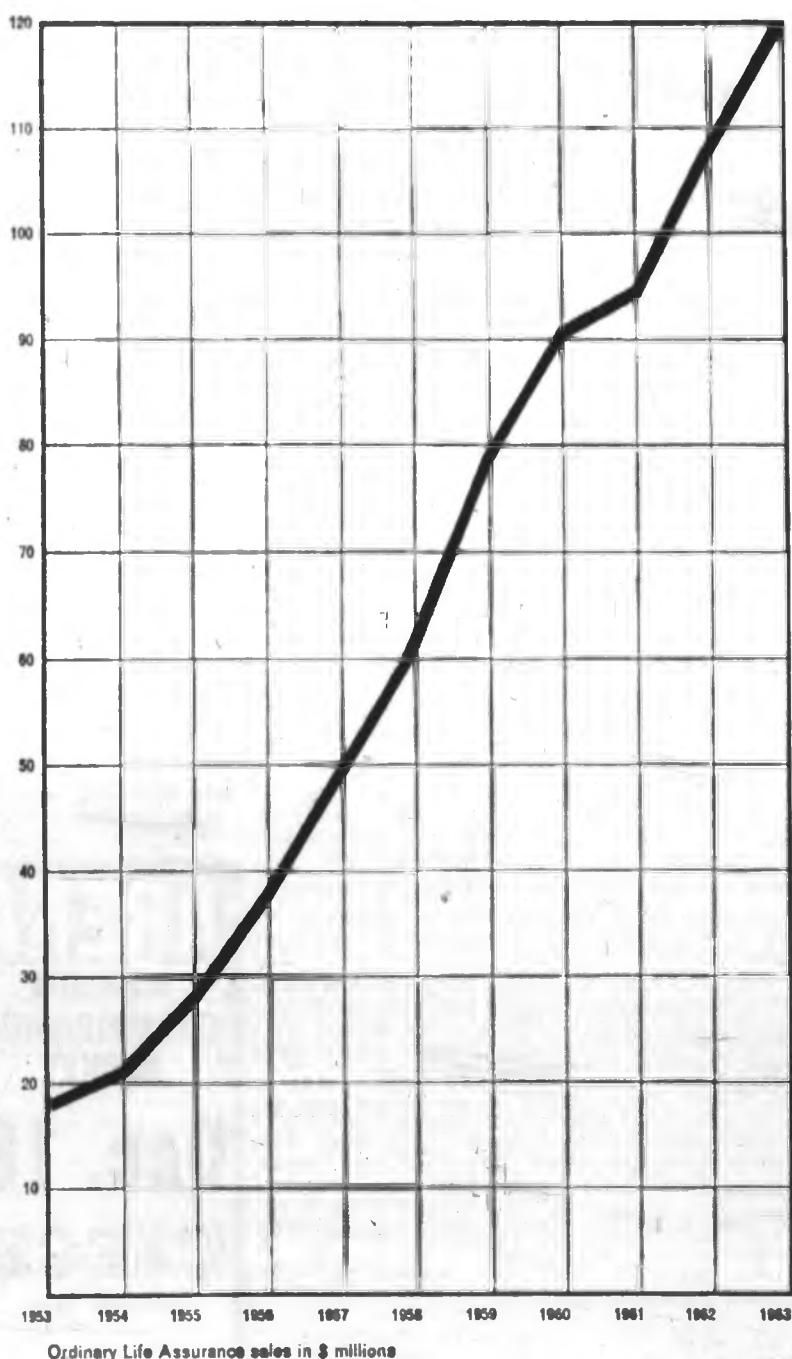

The Company's Reversionary Bonus Plan produces annual additions to the face value of the policy. As the result of the distribution at 15th November 1963, a policy for $10,000, under the Company's Full Reversionary Bonus Plan effected 35 years ago now provides life assurance protection for $22,098... an actual Standard Life case history.

Life assurance is a very important investment and next to a home is usually the largest single investment most people make. Before you invest in further Life Assurance get the facts from The Standard.

San Diego Chargers, led by a couple of veterans recruited from Canada, almost made certain of the Western Division championship in the American Football League Sunday by defeating Houston Oilers, 20-14.

Victory kept the Chargers a game ahead of Oakland Raiders, who edged past Denver Broncos, 35-31. The San Diego club meets the luckless Broncos in its last game next Sunday. Oakland plays Houston.

Elsewhere, Cleveland full-back Jim Brown, Baltimore quarterback John Unitas, and Minnesota defensive back Don Hutts all set league records.

Brown gained 125 yards in a 27-20 win over Washington to become the first NFL player to rush for more than a mile in one season—1,863 yards. Unitas connected on 21 of 37 passes in a 19-16 win over Los Angeles Rams for a new high of 237 completions in one season and Hutts recovered his ninth fumble of the season in a 34-13 rout of Philadelphia.

Members of the Dominos, Blue Ribbons and RCAF teams, who all won Canadian senior championships in Victoria, will be special guests.

Coaches Fined $1,000 For Not Halting Brawl

MONTREAL (CP)—Coaches Punch Imlach of Toronto and Billy Reay of Chicago were slapped with $1,000 fines and censured by the National Hockey League Monday for making no attempt to curb "the worst donnybrook that the league has experienced in many years."

The coaches were criticized by NHL president Clarence Campbell for not preventing their players from leaving the benches to take part in a free-swinging, 10-minute brawl that erupted during Toronto's 3-0 victory over the Hawks Dec. 7.

He also leveled additional fines against every player who left his bench to take part in the fight, which started when Chicago's Reggie Fleming speared Eddie Shack of Toronto.

Automatic fines incurred in the game and Campbell's additional penalties came to $4,925, the largest total fine ever imposed by the league for a single incident. The largest fine ever handed a coach was $2,000, levied against Toe Blake of Montreal three years ago.

NO CONTROL
"In my opinion there was no real control exercised by coaches Billy Reay and George Imlach over their players on the bench and there was no indication of any effort being made by either of them to bring them under control after the outbreak," Campbell said in a 1,000-word written report.

"In taking this severe action, it is hoped that this type of conduct will be stamped out for good and that it will serve as an effective warning to all other coaches and players that the league does not, and will not, tolerate it."

Campbell's week-long investigation of the incident, including examination of CBC kinescope recordings of the game, did not result in suspensions. He said the fines should be enough to discourage such outbreaks but "if not, more drastic penalties can be employed."

Campbell said the normal automatic $25 fine for leaving the bench was inadequate in this case and raised each fine to $100. The largest individual fine incurred by a player was $300, imposed on Fleming.

He also fined Carl Brewer of Toronto $50, although Brewer escaped without a penalty during the game because his part in the fight was accidentally overlooked by referee Frank Udvari. Campbell said Udvari thought Brewer deserved a major and misconduct penalty and the Maple Leaf defenceman was fined accordingly.

Campbell commended Udvari for his handling of the game and said the penalties issued by the referee were correct. He said blame for the donnybrook lay with the players and coaches.

NO MENTION
Campbell made no mention in his report of charges by Murray Balfour of Chicago that he had been punched in the face by either Imlach or Toronto trainer Bobby Haggart while wrestling with Brewer. Later, however, the NHL president said he found no evidence to support Balfour's charge.

The stepped-up fines included Toronto's Bob Baun, Larry Hillman of Chicago, both $150, and Balfour, $100.

Campbell Speaks:

MONTREAL (CP)—Following is the text of an announcement by Clarence Campbell, president of the National Hockey League, in connection with a brawl during a game between Chicago Black Hawks and Toronto Maple Leafs at Toronto Dec. 7.

With approximately three minutes remaining to be played in the third period of this game a series of incidents occurred which culminated in the worst donnybrook that the league has experienced in many years. It was in fact a most deplorable incident which was witnessed by millions of people on television as well as those in attendance and it was over 20 minutes before play was resumed.

Having studied the reports of the game officials and of the referee-in-chief, Carl Voss, who was present, and having carefully examined the CBC kinescope of the game which provided exceptionally fine coverage of the episode, and having afforded the team coaches and managers the opportunity of presenting their versions of what transpired, it is possible to reconstruct the relevant facts which are amply verified.

As the play was proceeding toward the Toronto end of the rink Reg Fleming (Chicago) was on right wing slightly in front and to the right of Ed Shack (Toronto). Neither was carrying the puck nor back-checking. Suddenly Fleming lunged to his left and speared Shack in the stomach with his stick and Shack fell to the ice.

Referee Frank Udvari promptly signalled a penalty to Fleming and ordered him to go to the penalty box, which he did. While the referee was checking on the extent of Shack's injury a sudden roar of the crowd called his attention to the fact that Bob Baun (Toronto) was at the penalty box gate (on the ice) trying to fight with Fleming. Linesman Neil Armstrong was able to get between them and after some pushing and attempted blows the officials were able to quieten things down and Fleming was given a major penalty for spearing and a major for fighting with Baun. By this time, with Fleming and Baun separated, several players of both teams had come on the ice in anticipation of the resumption of play.

Because there was less than five minutes to play and as the crowd reaction to Fleming was very hostile, the referee ordered Fleming to his dressing room to prevent further trouble. As Fleming reached the centre ice spot accompanied by several team-mates and the linesmen, he was suddenly jostled by Larry Hillman (Toronto), who had come off the Toronto bench and they started to fight. In seconds every player on both teams jumped on the ice—some to fight and some as peacemakers.

Fights broke out all over the ice with Murray Balfour (Chicago), Fleming (Chicago), Hillman (Toronto), Carl Brewer (Toronto) and Ron Stewart (Toronto) being the most prominent and these players, despite the referee's orders, refused to desist, causing a very long delay before the game could be resumed.

The referee then imposed the following penalties:

Fleming—Two majors, a misconduct and a game misconduct for persistent fighting.

Balfour—One major and a game misconduct for persistent fighting.

Man Mikita—One major and a misconduct for entering the penalty box and participating in the fight there.

Chico Maki—A misconduct for interfering with the referee.

Baun—One major, a misconduct and a game misconduct for persistent fighting.

Ron Stewart—One major and a misconduct for persistent fighting.

Hillman—One major and a misconduct for persistent fighting.

Brewer, who had been one of the most active in the fighting, was overlooked in the referee's report to the penalty timekeeper (probably because he had proceeded to the dressing room to replace his sweater). The referee reports that he intended to impose a major and a misconduct penalty and as there is ample proof of conduct to warrant it, Brewer will be considered to have had those penalties imposed.

The referee also instructed the penalty timekeeper to record all players who left both benches (all players in uniform except those on the ice when the stoppage of play for Fleming's penalty occurred) as being subject to the automatic fine of $25 under rule 62(b).

In my opinion the penalties imposed by the referee are correct but in some instances I do not believe that the automatic penalties provided are adequate for the purpose and they are accordingly increased in the following instances, including the automatic penalties under the rules:

Fleming $200; Balfour $100; Baun $150; Hillman $150; Brewer $50.

The automatic fines provided in the rules apply to Mikita ($25), Maki ($25) and Stewart ($25).

The automatic fine of $25 under rule 62(b) I consider to be inadequate and all players who left the benches are fined $100. This will produce some unavoidable inequities in terms of their participation in the ensuing brawl but the rule is designed to keep players from leaving their benches. If they do so, it is their own fault regardless of their intention to be peacemakers.

I am satisfied that the blame for this affair is not confined only to the players. The responsibility for the conduct of a hockey game rests on three groups of people, namely the referee and the linesmen, of whom the referee is the chief, and the management of the two teams, of whom the coaches are the chiefs in the conduct of the game.

I have viewed the film of the game and it is clear that it was well officiated—if anything on the side of severity in some calls. In fact the officials had handled the main episode very well and there would not have been any brawl at all if the other players had not come off the benches.

There was only one incident in the game itself which marred what had been, a well played and enjoyable spectacle. That was a foul in which Shack had high-sticked Fleming about halfway through the third period. The foul was called promptly by the referee and a minor penalty was imposed and served.

But the game was played against a backdrop of two earlier games in which there were attempts at intimidation and of planned retaliation. There were also a number of provocative statements in the press authored by both clubs.

In my opinion there was no real control exercised by coaches Billy Reay (Chicago) and George Imlach (Toronto) over their players on the bench and there was no indication of any effort being made by either of them to bring them under control after the outbreak.

In view of the damaging effect on the game and the league occasioned by this lack of control, I consider that a fine of $1,000 should be imposed on each of them and it is so ordered.

In taking this severe action it is hoped that this type of conduct will be stamped out for good and that it will serve as an effective warning to all other coaches and players that the league does not, and will not, tolerate it. If not, more drastic penalties can be employed.

Czechs Want to Try NHLers

CALGARY — The Czechoslovakian star-studded Olympic squad arrived in Calgary Saturday and immediately said they hoped to "learn something" from the professional National Hockey League.

The amateur club, ranked with the Russian and Swedish national teams as one of Europe's best, play 11 games in Canada, three against Canada's Olympic team and one at Chicago against the United States Olympic team.

They open their North American tour Tuesday night against a local all-star team at the Stampede Corral. Wednesday they play Canada's national team in Victoria.

Dr. Zdenek Andrat, president of the Czech hockey federation and team manager, said his club is anxious to play any NHL team.

"We're not interested in meeting a minor professional club," he said through an interpreter. "We'd like to play the best—no matter if we lose by five or 10 goals—because we can learn something."

Coach Juraj Anton and 26 team members, weary after a long trans-polar flight from Prague, did not appear at Saturday's press conference.

Anton, a former national team player, has worked to repair a defensive weakness believed a major reason for Czechoslovakia's defeat by Russia at the world championships last year.

Dr. Zdenek, in a good-natured aside, told the press conference he hoped Canada's new Olympic team is better than "Trail Smoke Eaters," a club that finished fourth in the 1963 world championships. He added he knew little about the Olympic team, coached by Rev. David Bauer. "He has a lot of young players and he could become a strong contender," he said. He believed Russia will be favored to capture the Olympic title next year at Innsbruck, Austria. Father Bauer's club and the Czechs also meet in Vancouver (Dec. 22) and in Sudbury (Jan. 3) as well as in Victoria.

Cougars Shove Chilliwack Aside

Victoria Cougars started with a rush Sunday at Memorial Arena and went on to beat Chilliwack Chiefs, 6-3, in a Pacific Coast Junior "A" Hockey League game.

In New Westminster, the Royals trounced Quesnel Wranglers of the Cariboo League, 10-0, as Paul Shmyr scored seven goals.

Cougars were nowhere near as productive, but were more than effective enough to win. Ted Sarkissian scored twice and Paul Blon, Don Wilson, Wayne

New Zealand Cricket Club To Play Here

WINNIPEG (CP)—The New Zealand Cricket Council team will play games in Victoria and Vancouver between next June 7 and June 29, it was announced at a recent meeting of the Canadian Cricket Association.

It was also announced that the inter-provincial championship will be held at Montreal Aug. 2-8.

A junior cricket team will be formed soon and will be known as the Thunderbird Club. It will tour Canada to create interest in the game among Canadian youth.

Boston Backs It's Bruins In Drive to Leave Cellar

Fifth place in a six-team league may seem like a modest accomplishment, but when the team is Boston Bruins and the league is the National Hockey League the move takes on more lustre.

Bruins, dead last in the NHL for the past three seasons, have suddenly turned stubborn, and at the moment who snapped a nine-game winless streak with a brawling 4-2 victory over Montreal Canadiens in New York.

United Defenders Suddenly Collapse

net and let Columbus get away for breakaways on four others.

Ron Pedersen scored the United goal. Milligan swears he also scored another that would have tied the score at 2-2, but it was disallowed. Steve Dvorich, Bob Smith, Errol Crossman and Gogie Stewart scored the first four goals for Columbus and Fred Bundschuck, who arrived from Calgary in time to play the second half, got the last two.

It was the first victory in six tries for goalie Jacques Plante over his former club. In the first five games he gave up 23 goals.

CHICAGO HAWKS
Chicago Black Hawks stretched their unbeaten string on home ice to 15 games, but had to settle for a 4-4 tie with Detroit Red Wings.

CHICO MAKI, Earl Balfour, Wayne Hillman and Pierre Plante scored for Hawks, while Andre Promovost, with two goals, Doug Barkley and Ed Joyal scored for the Wings.

Don Chandler Top Scorer

NEW YORK (AP)—Don Chandler of New York Giants won the National Football League scoring title, edging Baltimore Colts' Jim Martin by two points in a battle of kickers.

Chandler and Martin went into Sunday's games tied with 97 points each. Chandler kicked two field goals and three extra points for a 106 total to 104 for Martin, who booted two field goals and one extra point.

Milligan also had a few choice words about the refereeing, which gave Columbus a penalty kick and a goal in the first minute. But mostly he was diagnosed with his defence, which put one goal in its own

Fisticuffs Mar Mayor's Party

NOTTINGHAM, Eng. (AP) —The lord mayor's party was going full swing and Princess Margaret's husband, Lord Snowdon, was mingling convivially with the local bigwigs. Everything was fine until a crowd of hungry actors trooped in and fists began to fly.

FOOD GONE
Having just performed at the opening of Nottingham's new $1,000,000 playhouse, the actors raced across to the celebration party in city hall to eat. But they found the food and drink nearly all gone, most of it consumed by those who had watched their performance.

Protests were aired. Soon a fist-swinging brawl was in progress on a marble staircase outside the mayor's parlor. MOST EMBARRASSING
"It was," said a city official, "most embarrassing for Lord Snowdon."

The theatrical party included actors Peter Ustinov and John Neville, producer Sir Tyrone Guthrie and director Frank Dunlop. They were late arriving at the party because the actors had to change and they waited for stage hands, who had to tidy up.

DETAILS LEAK OUT
Details of the incident leaked out Saturday, three days after the party. Dunlop said: "I approached the lord mayor, who was with Lord Snowdon, and said I was worried about the cast not having any food. He seemed genuinely concerned and suggested we should see if there was anything in his parlor."

GIVEN LECTURE
In the parlor they found the town clerk, Thomas Owen. Neville said Sir Tyrone gave the town clerk a lecture. "I was pushed out of the room," said Neville, "by two town hall officials."

Soon after that a member of the theatre company found himself trading punches with a town hall official on the staircase. Two scarlet-coated attendants rushed to separate them.

WALKED OUT
At that point the theatre company walked out. Guthrie told reporters: "The actors were really ravenous after the evening's performance. But there was hardly a crumb left for them and nothing at all to drink. Lord Snowdon, of course, did not join in the discussion. I think he felt just as embarrassed by what was happening as we were."

43 Days 'In Space' —Four Feel Fine

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP)—Four U.S. airmen ended a simulated 43-day space flight Monday, saying they felt fine "and had no problems at all." They spent 30 days breathing pure oxygen at 21,500 feet to help scientists see how men react to the atmosphere planned for Gemini and Apollo spacecraft.

Landlady Helped Canadians Escape

TORONTO (CP)—Two Canadians reported to have been taken hostage by rebellious tin miners at Siglo Veinte, Bolivia, actually eluded the miners with the aid of the woman proprietor of their staff house. The story of their escape was brought to Canada by Herbert H. Cox of Toronto, vice-president of Prospection Ltd. The Canadians were Raymond Brousseau, 28, of Cobalt, Ont., and Aurele Falardeux, 34, of Ville Marie, Que. Falardeux told how a number of armed miners came to the staff house about 9 p.m. Dec. 6 and asked the woman proprietor: "Where are the Canadians?" She told them the Canadians had left, and the miners went away. But they returned in a more hostile mood about 11 p.m. The woman met them while the Canadians hid beneath a bed. About 3 a.m. the miners, now drunk and enraged, returned again. Falardeux and Brousseau hid in a small attic.

Rivalry Sparks Uproar In IWA

VANCOUVER (CP)—Inter-union rivalry within the ranks of the International Woodworkers of America erupted in harsh words by opposing union factions over the weekend.

Saturday Syd Thompson, president of IWA Local 1-217 (Vancouver), the largest IWA local on the coast, issued a bitter attack on regional IWA president Jack Moore and secretary-treasurer Fred Fieber for their support of a job-training program for future millwrights.

CALLS FOR DEFEAT
Mr. Thompson in a statement at a meeting of tradesmen here called for the defeat of Moore and Fieber for their support of the program, which requires present millwrights to take an examination to acquire a certificate of competence to qualify for an additional 10 cents an hour.

Mr. Thompson said Moore and Fieber will have to be defeated because their behavior cannot be longer tolerated.

A statement issued Sunday by president Moore, Mr. Fieber and three other regional officers of the union, termed the attack by Thompson as "unprincipled" and said it must be "branded as cheap inter-union politics."

"As usual," said the union officers' statement, "Thompson ignores the facts and the directions given to regional officers by the regional convention."

It said "his scurrilous attack on two individual officers for supporting a program of training future millwrights, and where necessary upgrading present employees, clarifies his intentions of keeping the union divided."

TAMPA, Fla. — A state trooper gave chase to a sports car which was rolling down a highway at 65 miles an hour with a chimpanzee behind the wheel.

When the car pulled over, trooper Lamar Maxwell wrote out tickets for driving without a licence and reckless driving and handed them to the chimp's companion, Robert Slover, 41.

Slover was training Tammy to drive as part of an animal act. The car had dual brake and accelerator pedals, but only one steering wheel.

PITTSBURGH — Pianist Liberace left hospital after three weeks of treatment for a kidney disorder and went home to Hollywood to rest.

OTTAWA — Mrs. Ena Christine Campbell of Brandon, Man., won a $35,889 damage action against the Royal Bank of Canada in the Supreme Court of Canada. She was permanently disabled when she slipped and fell in the bank's Brandon office in 1959.

FAYETTE, Iowa — President Eugene Garber of Upper Iowa University is giving his annual wild game dinner. The menu includes moose nose hash, blackbird pie, braised rattlesnake, baked corn, stewed squirrel, raw apple bread and persimmon pudding with hard sauce.

VANCOUVER — Shoplifter James Markey, 42, who left Oakalla prison farm last Saturday, asked for and got a two-year prison term. His story: "I cannot handle alcohol."

ROMFORD, England — Tattoo artist, Victor Skipton, 41, said teen-agers are lining up to get special Christmas tattoos. Customer Brian Hargreaves, 16, said he was tattooed "to help me think about religion more often."

VANCOUVER — Shelby Campbell, 5, of Coquitlam, became the second of five children of Mr. and Mrs. Alan Campbell to undergo open heart surgery successfully to close a hole in her heart.

PHILADELPHIA — A team of doctors saved Patrick McBride, 14 months, by massaging his heart almost an hour after he choked on a small Christmas toy.

WINNIPEG — The Canadian National Institute for the Blind disclosed it has received for its eye bank the eyes of a 12-year-old girl identified only as Michele. She bequeathed her eyes shortly before her death this month from a heart ailment.

COLUMBIA, Calif. — Airman Michael Hoffman, 19, stood two hours of guard duty beside the community Christmas tree during his leave. It was part of his sentence for stealing two big lights from the tree last year.

OTTAWA — George DeMenoff, 24, of the Sons of Freedom Doukhobor sect, lost his appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada against his conviction for bombing a power pole near Grand Forks two years ago.

OTTAWA — Arturo Rodriguez Kapellat, 41, former head of the secret police of the Dominican Republic, lost an appeal before the immigration appeal board against a deportation order.

MOSCOW — Nikita Khrushchev has accepted invitations to visit Norway, Sweden, Denmark and India next year. Meanwhile, India has invited Pope Paul to make a visit.

LOS ANGELES — Stan Jones, television actor and composer of Ghost Riders in the Sky, died at 49.

BELGRADE — British ambassador Sir Michael Greville was presented as two new suburbs housing 3,500 were dedicated in the earthquake city of Skopje. British charities paid the bill.

VANCOUVER — Entertainer Chris Gage collapsed in a night club dressing room. He was revived by an inhalator crew and taken to hospital.

OTTAWA — Fisheries Minister Robichaud said the treasury board has authorized the spending of $250,000 on an addition to the aquarium at Vancouver.

RONN — Thomas Dehler, a West German political leader, has petitioned Nikita Khrushchev to release ailing Baldur von Schirach, Nazi war criminal serving a 20-year sentence.

CHRISTCHURCH, England — John Dickings, 94, walked three miles to his wedding in Dorothy Ledbetter, 50, arriving three hours early.

ABERDEEN, S.D. — Two more of the Fischer quintuplets left hospital during the weekend, and all five are expected home by Christmas.

WINNIPEG — International Red Cross president John Macaulay said the $55,000 Nobel peace prize awarded to his organization may be used to support the new Red Cross headquarters in Geneva.

SEOUL, South Korea — The ruling military junta began a mass release of 20,000 prisoners in a general amnesty to mark the inauguration of Gen. Chung Hee Park as president.

Four-Year Sentence For Rape

VANCOUVER (CP) — Arthur William Gourlay, 20, of Vancouver was sentenced Monday to four years in the B.C. Penitentiary for the rape of a 20-year-old girl in Stanley Park here July 9.

Mr. Justice McInnes said in deciding the sentence he considered the fact that the girl attacked was "rather lax in her attitude toward men . . . and in a measure she led you on to believe that she would accede to your desires."

BRUTAL ASSAULT
However, he said he could not ignore Gourlay's brutal assault on the girl when she refused his advances.

The defendant's lawyer, Harry Rankin, asked that Gourlay be considered little more than a boy and be sent to Haney Correctional Institute so as to avoid the influence of hardened criminals in B.C. Penitentiary.

Mr. Justice McInnes refused, noting that evidence before him indicated Gourlay had, "up to the present time . . . led a particularly useless and irresponsible life."

Status Symbols Get Mileage

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Private secretaries, posh offices, air-conditioned autos and executive washrooms "are tension-saving devices that get better mileage out of executives," says Dr. Robert Turfboer, an industrial psychiatrist.

Executive comforts "are legitimate symbols of responsibility and brain power," he said in an interview.

Turfboer is psychiatric consultant for The New York Times and the Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Company, and a clinical instructor at the Yale University School of Medicine.

"I believe in status symbols as a means of identification," said Turfboer.

"At a large business convention you find all the delegates wear name tags. This is so everyone will know who they are. On the street or in the office, there are symbols that show a man's position—the private secretary, the personal barber, the big black limousine."

"People need symbols in proportion to their status. Even the street sweeper likes a new broom."

It takes a long time to break an old habit. 60 seconds.

You know what you like in whiskies. You've probably been living with the one kind for five, ten, maybe twenty years. All we ask is one minute. We think that's all it will take to change your mind. That, and merely one taste of a whisky called Time. You'll find you have never known a rye like this. The taste is light, warm, smooth. A gentle whisky—but not at all kind to old habits. It gives you a lot to think about for 60 seconds. Time enough.

Edgelow

Parkland Levy Opposed

Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow is opposed to "Victoria contributing a suggested half-million to an intermunicipal fund for the purchase of parkland on the Saanich Peninsula."

He told a city hall committee yesterday: "Victoria taxpayers should not supply any funds for this purpose. We now own hundreds of acres of parkland outside our borders and I feel the city has already contributed more than its share . . . to the common good."

The city is still waiting for recommendations of the Chamber of Commerce based upon the Hugh Stephen report in which the joint parkland fund was proposed.

The waterworks committee decided to abandon a special study aimed at reaching agreement with Central Saanich before the end of the year on leasing of property for its Elk Lake pumphouse.

City manager Dennis Young reported that the city had not been able to obtain statistics it needed from the auditors for Central Saanich municipality and therefore wasn't in a position to make the necessary study.

NOT COVERED
The city was advised by Reeve R. Gordon Lee that auditors warned that $400,000 in assets would have to be removed from the municipality's books in 1964 if the pumphouse property was not covered by a formal agreement this year.

Ald. Edgelow said he objected to recent statements by Reeve Lee to the effect that the city was being unco-operative. "If anyone is being unco-operative it is Central Saanich," he said. "Perhaps we had better ease up a bit on a water lap. This seems to be the time to get tough."

DRAFT BUDGET

Parks committee approved in principle a suggestion to provide identification plaques for birds found in Beacon Hill Park. The signs would consist of paintings of each species and identify them. The cost will be included in the 1964 draft budget next spring.

Finance committee recommended approval of a 3-cent hourly wage increase requested by the corps of commissionaires. The four men on parking meter patrol now earn $1.85 an hour and the sergeant gets $1.95.

Murdoch to Watch From Sidelines

Retiring Oak Bay Reeve George Murdoch last night said he will be watching Oak Bay municipal affairs "from the sidelines."

Reeve Murdoch last night presided over his last meeting of Oak Bay council. He has served for 18 years on Oak Bay council, the last five as reeve.

Councillors last night presented him with a desk set.

Coun. J. D. Watts, attending his last council meeting after being defeated in a bid to be elected reeve, thanked the councillors past and present, the municipal staff and the member of council's zoning committee with whom he worked.

Swearing-in ceremonies for new members of council will be at 10 a.m. Dec. 30 at the Greater Victoria Law Courts.

TREES DISCUSSED

Last night's final meeting of the 1963 Oak Bay council included some discussion of a very Oak Bay subject—trees.

Council received a petition from seven residents of Dover Street protesting moves under way by the municipality to plant boulevard trees along the street.

arts courses of the university and in addition teach one or more theological courses.

"A brief was presented to the (university) senate requesting that the proposal be carefully examined so that a plan might be agreed for drafting a private bill to submit to the B.C. legislature," he said.

"It is believed that such a college would be a valuable contribution to the university and would be unique in associating Anglicans and Roman Catholics in a joint endeavor in the field of higher education and would manifest the liberal and progressive spirit which animates the new university."

The senate body heard an oral presentation of the college proposal, and accepted a written brief covering the same field.

This will be studied by a special committee set up by the senate for the purpose.

Blast Kills Nine

HELPER, Utah (AP)—An explosion ripped the depths of a coal mine near this central Utah town yesterday, killing nine men and injuring one.

The explosion occurred at the face, or end, of one of the mine's two shafts, both of which extend a mile into a mountain in what is known as Hardscabble Canyon.

"They must have hit a pocket of gas," said George Diamanti, mine co-owner. "That's all I can figure out."

State industrial commission officials at the scene speculated that one of two things caused the explosion: coal dust or methane gas.

500 Silver Dollars Offered Polar Bears

NANAIMO—Frank Ney, Nanaimo realtor, has announced that 500 silver dollars will be given to those hardy enough to participate in a Boxing Day polar bear swim in the icy waters of Departure Bay.

Five dollars will be awarded to every entrant who stays in the water up to his neck for two minutes and one silver dollar to those who only dip and run.

Board to Aid Transport Of Handicapped Pupils

School trustees of Greater Victoria District 61 are prepared to assist in the cost of transporting retarded children and cerebral palsy children to school.

Trustees agreed last night the board will pay the whole cost of children living within 2½ miles of school. Beyond that the department of education shares the cost.

Trustees heard plans for 52 new junior secondary school rooms from superintendent John Gough last night, who was continuing proposals for a referendum planned for spring.

Involved are new schools at Christie Point, with 15 rooms, and Reynolds with 17 rooms. Schools scheduled for additions are Colquitz, 10 rooms; Esquimalt, four, and Gordon Head, six.

Previously trustees heard proposals for 119 elementary rooms but so far cost of the new rooms and schools has not been mentioned. The proposals will now go to the building supervisor who will assess costs.

The trustees accepted the resignation of trustee Douglas E. Hookham, who has been

Esquimalt Expects Profit for the Year

Municipal clerk J. W. Allan told council last night the municipality may wind up $5,000 to $6,000 in the black on current estimates of $1,216,300.

He said $46,000 still is uncollected and an additional $5,000 to $6,000 is expected. Mr. Allan said $1,170,134 had been collected to date.

A special bus hired by Esquimalt to take voters from the north side to the municipal hall on election day carried 60 voters, council was told.

Council approved the bus after removing the northside polling section and putting all voting facilities under one roof. Cost was less than $1 a voter.

Prices of imported food, beverages and tobacco increased by one-third in Britain between 1949 and 1954.

Tree, Flower Plan Pleases Beautifiers

City beautification committee yesterday looked at and liked a new proposal for landscaping traffic islands at the roundabout with flower tubs and trees but decided not to make any firm recommendation to city council.

The new scheme, to cost an estimated $4,910, will be considered by all the aldermen when council meets on Thursday and they will have a scale model to help them visualize its full impact.

City manager Dennis Young told the committee it promised to create "something more attractive than just the beautification of these traffic islands—this can become an outstanding focal point at the main entrance to the city."

Both the manager and parks administrator W. H. Warren stressed the importance of the trees in the landscaping plan.

The 10 trees placed in clumps on three islands would have no foliage below 10 feet from the ground, so that motorists' vision would not be obscured, but the greenery above would block off unattractive surroundings at the intersection.

The committee was also given a series of alternate proposals together with estimated costs.

To regrade the rocks now on the islands, place 26 concrete tubs containing shrubs and flowers in season, and install water lines would cost $3,220, the report said. Addition of concrete pads beneath the tubs would boost this total to $4,330.

To scrap the whole idea and go back to grass and tubbed shrubs would cost $3,735 or $5,010 with an irrigation system installed.

Comparative maintenance costs are estimated at $960 a year for grass or $735 if irrigation is included; with the cost running at about $600 for the rock treatment.

The proposal recommended by Mr. Young involves rock surface treatment of the islands. But it could be adapted, committee was told, to grass still using the tubs and trees.

Cost of planting 10 trees is about $1,000.

Christmas Decorations

Jaycees' Contest Deadline Now Thursday

Deadline for entries in the Junior Chamber of Commerce Christmas decorations contest has been extended to Thursday.

Jaycees last night announced the names of judges in the contest. They will be: Clyde Harrington, editor of Beautiful British Columbia magazine; Victoria city planner Rod Clark; commercial artist Tom Seymoursberger; and Oak Bay Councillor-elect Frances Elford.

NAVY OFFICER HELPS

Navy public relations officer Cmdr. William Patton will assist judges in the house and business premises categories of the contest but will not help judge decorated navy ships, a new category in the contest this year.

The navy frigate HMCS New Glasgow will be decorated and will be in the Inner Harbor Wednesday and Thursday, a delegation of Jaycees, along with Victoria Mayor R. B. Wilson, will present the New Glasgow's captain with a token of appreciation at 8 p.m. Thursday.

Ships in the contest will be judged Saturday and houses and business premises Sunday and Monday.

Routes for Christmas lights tours have not yet been set. About 50 applications have so far been received for the contest. Usual total is about 80.

Hinges on Reports

No Decision on School

Education Minister Peterson B.C. or the Greater Victoria School District should build a new vocational school here. He indicated it may be cheaper for the province if the school is built under the authority of the school district—but cost was not the object.

It may be, he said, that a provincial regional vocational school would better fill the need because it would be part of an organization which assesses B.C. requirements as a whole.

Mr. Peterson said a regional vocational school for Greater Victoria is not a high-priority item at the moment but is part of his department's long-range planning.

Oak Bay Drivers Will Face Radar

Traffic violators behind the Tweed Curtain will soon be faced with a fiendish new electronic device—radar.

Oak Bay council last night approved a request by the municipal police commission to spend unused money in the department's 1963 budget to buy a radar set for $1,470.37.

ONE OF FEW

Reeve George Murdoch said Oak Bay's police department now is one of the few in B.C. without radar. He said in drawing up the 1963 budget, council cut a radar set from police appropriations on the understanding the department would be allowed to buy one if its budget was underspent.

Council also agreed to the department spending about $1,700 to pay policemen for annual vacations and statutory holidays they did not take this year.

Reeve Murdoch explained the vacations and holidays were not taken because of the long sicknesses of two policemen and because men were tied up through the transferring of all Greater Victoria magistrate's courts to the Saanich police-fire building.

Council referred to next year's council a letter from the Community Planning Association, Capital Region Branch, endorsing the recent report on planning by Victoria Chamber of Commerce director Hugh Stephen and calling for updating of the Capital Region Planning Board's 1958 urban renewal plan.

TWO YEARS AGO

Coun. Allan Cox said little had come of a suggestion by Coun. John Watts, passed on by Oak Bay council a couple of years ago, for a green belt outside Greater Victoria.

Council received a letter from its employees union asking to open wage negotiations and voted in favor of setting up of a special intermunicipal committee to discuss with B.C. Hydro the future of Greater Victoria bus service.

Relocation of Trade May Solve Creek Job

If Oak Bay schools will relocate the proposed track to ensure no loss of soccer and hockey fields, trustees are prepared to pay a reasonable price for covering Bowker Creek.

The schools, which have $8,700 toward the track plus promise of another $5,000 from the Victoria Gyro Club, at present plan to establish the track on the schools' property but this would mean elimination or reduction in size of a hockey field and soccer pitch.

But if Bowker Creek were covered for a distance the schools would have more usable land and the planned track could be relocated and still leave room for the other playing fields.

Trustee David Logan, who had previously protested establishment of a track at the expense of other fields, suggested the compromise and after three attempts to frame an understandable motion, trustees finally approved one which called for covering the necessary portion of the creek at a reasonable cost.

No Future Here

Dejected Songhees Chief Quits to Seek U.S. Job

By JACK FRY

Chief John Albany, discouraged about lack of job opportunities for Indians here, has resigned as leader of the Songhees Band and plans to look for a job in the United States.

Chief Albany, 47, married and the father of eight children ranging in age from 19 to three years, was laid off 2½ weeks ago from his job as a plater at a shipyard here.

It has happened to him so many times in the past 22 years he has worked at the shipyard that he will now try to find a steady job as an ironworker in Washington State, he said last night.

CHIEF JOHN ALBANY
... discouraged

Chief Albany's letter of resignation was mailed Sunday night to the Cowichan Indian Agency at Duncan. An election probably will be held by the Songhees in January, to fill the remaining year of his two-year term.

News of the chief's resignation reached the Colonist last night from an unidentified spokesman for the Songhees Band, apparently even before councillors Richard Albany and Alfred George had been informed.

NO FUTURE

Chief Albany later confirmed the report and said, "I don't see any future here for me or the rest of my family—it's just the same old down-trodden trail."

"You've got to have bread and butter on the table and it is reaching the point where we don't have that."

CLOSER HARMONY

Ironically, it was Chief John Albany who tried to bring closer harmony between Indians and non-Indians during his five-year leadership of the Songhees.

He encouraged Indians from all over Vancouver Island to participate in Indian Festivals held here during the month of May, during which the Reserve at Plummer Bay was opened to non-Indian spectators.

ONE DAY A YEAR

Just over a week ago, while still taking penicillin for a bout of pneumonia, he stood up at an Indian Friendship Feast and told politicians and Indians alike, "It would be good if the rest of the world could set aside one day a year to meet and feast as we are doing here tonight."

Now, Chief Albany is ready to join the migration of young Indians to the United States, in search of better job opportunities.

"Maybe I am getting tired and letting my people down, but just can't see myself going on with it," he said last night.

DREW BENEFITS

"I've been unemployed the biggest part of my life ... I doubt if I was employed seven or eight weeks a year." He said he drew unemployment benefits when he was out of work.

"There's not much left in my life, and I've got to get something permanent." He plans to go to the U.S. after the Christmas holidays and "I'll find something steady there."

"I don't think Indians have a chance over here at any kind of work. There is better opportunity over there, and I don't blame our young men for going over."

ESTABLISHED

"You would be surprised at the number of our young Canadian Indians who have got themselves established over there."

"I am going over there as an iron worker. I hope I succeed—if not, I'll end up being a berry picker," said Chief Albany.

The Indian spokesman who reported the chief's resignation said the news came as "a shock." He said Chief Albany "fought hard, tried all his life and worked for the betterment of his people. Maybe he thought there was no other way out."

Downtown Fair Jaycee Aim

Jaycees are going to try to keep their spring fair in downtown Victoria, the president of the Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce said last night.

City works committee yesterday told Jaycees they will not be allowed to have the Victoria Exhibition next year spread over Blanshard Street by Memorial Arena.

Works committee members said Blanshard has become a major traffic artery and can no longer be closed off.

Bryan Holliday, Victoria Jaycee president, said last night that Jaycees are considering a number of possible ways to change the fair if they are denied the use of Blanshard Street. Included are reducing the size of the fair and moving it elsewhere.

But Jaycees still feel the fair belongs downtown, he said. "I don't think it will go better anywhere else," he said. "It is one of the few major attractions in the downtown area."

A last big plea against Saanich council's plan to rezone a chunk of Shelbourne Street for apartment use will be made at a public meeting Wednesday.

Every member of council is invited to attend the meeting, which will be held at St. Aidan's hall at the corner of Cedar Hill Cross Road and Richmond, at 8 p.m. Wednesday.

Massive Protest Planned

Council members were invited to hear the views of the ratepayers, who have mounted a strong opposition block to council's plans for medium density apartment zoning on both sides of Shelbourne between Mortimer and Ophir Streets.

Nearly 500 handbills announcing the public meeting have been distributed to homes in the Shelbourne area, said a spokesman for the opposition group.

Council gave first three readings to the bylaw last week and is scheduled to give final reading (formal adoption) at the Dec. 23 council meeting.

$500 Damage

Tombstones Desecrated

Vandals caused about $500 damage over the weekend when they walked through Ross Bay cemetery, pushing over 17 headstones, shattering some of the monuments.

The desecration was discovered Monday morning by a cemetery worker, Carl Howard. He righted several monuments which had been overturned.

As headstones have been same cemetery.

overturned in the past, he thought little of the incident until discovering the full extent of the damage. It is believed the incident took place Sunday night.

In most cases the damage was done to older monuments, when crosses atop them shattered with the impact.

Last year vandals caused about $3,000 damage to the same cemetery.

Tentative Approval Given Esquimalt Garden Apartment

Approval in principle was given last night by Esquimalt council to plans to build a garden apartment on a site near the navy playing field on Colville Road.

The plan originally called for five separate units to be built on 1½ acres of property and was rejected in this form by council because of too high a population density.

The new tentative plan submitted by Dr. L. W. Halstrom of Halstrom Enterprises, Vancouver, calls for three units which will house between 22 and 30 families. Plans are to be submitted at council meeting Jan. 22 for final approval.

Construction costs per suite are $7,000 to $7,500.

Dr. Halstrom told council since the previous plan was not approved they had been working hard to arrive at a new plan which would please both council and mortgage companies whose support they were seeking.

He said the two-storey type of family dwelling with bedrooms on the second floor and living space on the main floor had been the plan that met with the mortgage company's approval.

Dr. Halstrom told council the property was not being developed as speculation but was to act as his father's retirement investment. Mr. Hal-strom would be living on the premises as manager, he said.

The property is zoned for multiple dwellings. Mr. Halstrom has been paying taxes on the property for the last 10 years, Dr. Halstrom said.

Dr. Halstrom said the plans were to develop the units around a 60-foot oak tree in the centre of the lot. There would be provision for a large playground for children as the development is planned to appeal to families, and adequate parking at the rear of the property would be provided.

Municipal engineer John Graeme said as planned the garden apartments would be well below the density figure called for by Esquimalt.

Curtis Pleads for Wonderland

A Saanich councillor stepped up to bat yesterday for the Wooded Wonderland at Beaver Lake.

Coun. Hugh Curtis said he will try to talk council into reconsidering last week's decision which amounted to "a death sentence" for the two-year-old children's fairyland attraction.

"I wonder how many members of council really understand the nature of that attraction and the reception it has been given by local residents and tourists alike," he said.

Council tabled a letter from city council seeking Saanich's concurrence for a five-year lease to Wonderland operator Alfred Pettersen.

Mr. Pettersen subsequently said that unless Saanich council changes its stand, he will be forced to take his fairyland figures to Tacoma, Wash., and let Beaver Lake become a swamp again.

"Any area needs young men of imagination and initiative such as Mr. Pettersen has shown, and this latest move will do little more than force him to move to the United States," said Coun. Curtis.

"As a parent, I would miss it—and I am surprised that more parents and grandparents here have not come forth in support of this delightful place."

Pettersen transformed a swamp into an attractive area, yet because of something which may or may not happen far in the future (a possible golf course or sale of the city-owned property for park purposes) we are running the risk of losing a development which we now have," Coun. Curtis said.

"I intend to bring it up again when the new council meets in January, and see if we can point out the emergency of the situation—tabling it for those other things is sending it on its way to the U.S."

Box Holds Gifts

CHEMAINUS — Miss Jean Gibbling, who is to be married shortly, was guest of honor at a surprise miscellaneous shower held at the home of her parents when co-hostesses were Mrs. Lester Booth, Mrs. Victor Petras, and Mrs. J. R. Neff.

On arrival the bride-elect, her mother, Mrs. Eric Gibbling and future mother-in-law, Mrs. G. Hutchinson, were presented with corsages. The gifts were presented in a decorated box. The guest of honor cut a bride shower cake decorated in pink, white and mauve. Assisting the hostesses in serving were the Misses Beverly Guest, Marguerite Gibbling, Vicky and Patsy Petras, Deanna Gibbling, and Janet Irving.

LEGION LA

Ladies' Auxiliary, Royal Canadian Legion, Branch No. 42, will meet Thursday, Dec. 20, at 7:45 p.m. in the auditorium, 1117 Broad Street. After a short meeting during which Mrs. M. King and Mrs. J. Etchells will be installed, the annual Christmas party will be held. Members are reminded to bring a gift for the tree.

The forthcoming marriage is announced of Miss Margaret Lorraine Graham, daughter of Mrs. Walter Devane, 4436 Narvaez Crescent, and the late Mr. Alexander Douglas Graham, to Mr. Heinz Joachim Gerner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Gerner of Marburg, Germany. The wedding will take place at Christmas in Maui, Hawaii, where the young couple will make their home for an indefinite length of time.—(Meyers Studio)

Tag Day Nets $195

WA to Chemainus Hospital met recently in the board room with Mrs. G. K. Heydon in the chair. Mrs. Rex Waddell was welcomed as a new member.

Mrs. S. J. Pratt turned over canteen profits of $23.61 and Mrs. D. Petrie $17.93 for match sales.

Mrs. G. C. Saunders, Thrift Shop convener, gave the treasurer a cheque for $625.

Mrs. Gerry Philippon reported $195.61 proceeds from Christmas canteen tag day. Of the 600 corsages, 100 were made and sold by the Thetis Island group.

Mrs. A. L. Brown reported for the nominating committee.

The new officers are Mrs. Val Rivett-Carnac, president; Mrs. T. E. Clayton, first vice-president; Mrs. P. Bodger, treasurer; Mrs. G. Philippon, recording secretary; Mrs. E. G. English, corresponding secretary; and Mrs. Frank Eastwood, social convener.

The officers will be installed by Mrs. Norman Bennett, provincial president, at a dinner meeting Jan. 10.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I will remember this day as long as I live. Today they came and took my beloved 19-year-old son to jail. As I sank into a chair, stunned and bewildered, my eyes fell on your column in today's paper.

The first letter was from a mother who signed herself "Frantic." She was writing about her 14-year-old daughter who was completely out of control. Well, the reason my son went to jail is because another mother let her 14-year-old daughter run wild. This girl did not have to be home at any specific hour. She could go out with anyone, any age, anywhere.

When I learned my son was doing a 14-year-old girl I phoned her mother and begged her to keep this oversexed child at home. I was told she had always been a problem, and that they could do nothing with her.

When the girl became pregnant my son was charged with carnal knowledge and found guilty.

So please, Ann, advise parents who can't control their daughters to send them to detention homes so the boys will be safe. —HEARTBROKEN.

Dear Heartbroken: I would like to remind you and all mothers of sons that there will always be sexpots around girls who are not only willing but aggressively seeking male attention.

If mothers raise their sons to respect their maleness and respect womanhood, and if they are taught that the human body has a higher purpose and is not a plaything, there will be no need to worry about a son being dragged off to jail for immoral conduct.

Dear Ann Landers: A very good friend of mine is a great talker. She can report a trivial incident and can make it sound like the most earth-moving epic of all times. In the middle of her dramatic presentation she invariably becomes snagged on a minor detail. Sample: "And then on Tuesday—or was it Wednesday—no, I think it was Tuesday because Tuesday is the day Molly comes at 9:00 a.m. No it was Monday and not Tuesday. I remember clearly now—or was it Friday?" By then, of course I've lost interest in what she was saying.

Why do people do this? Don't they realize it doesn't matter an iota to the listener whether it was Monday, Tuesday or Sunday? Please shed a little light. —GNASHED TEETH.

Dear Teeth: Of course this sort of self-interruption ruins a story but it's strange that so many people are addicted to the habit. They are actually trying to settle the point to their own satisfaction. Unfortunately, it's the listener who suffers.

DAUGHTERS

The Daughters of St. George No. 238 will hold their Christmas party and supper Friday, Dec. 20, at 6:30 p.m. in the K. of P. Hall. Meeting and exchange of gifts will follow.

Honeymoon In Nassau

Carleton Heights Memorial United Church in Ottawa was decorated with white chrysanthemums and pink snapdragons Saturday afternoon when Sub-Lt. (NS) Beverley Joan Fletcher exchanged marriage vows with Lieut. James Greig Macartney Smith, RCN. Following a honeymoon at Nassau, the couple will make their home here.

Rev. Norman Hair officiated at the double-ring ceremony. Soloist was Miss Susan Logan and Mrs. Roy Day played "O Perfect Love."

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Glasgow Fletcher of Ottawa, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Greig Binny Smith of Toronto.

Mr. Fletcher gave his daughter in marriage. She wore a gown of white silk organza styled with chapel train and fingertip sleeves. A small pearl tiara held her bouffant veil and she carried a bouquet of white roses.

Blue peau de soie street-length gowns, white shoes and hats were choice of maid of honor, Miss Shellagh Fletcher, sister of the bride, and the bridesmaids, Miss Binny Smith, sister of the groom, and Miss Wendy Fletcher, another sister of the bride.

All carried pink and rose bouquets of carnations and roses.

FO William John Sharkey, RCAF, was best man and ushers were Douglas Fletcher and FO John G. Whitaker, RCAF.

The best man proposed the toast at a reception in Ottawa Hunt Club. The bride's table was centred with white chrysanthemums, pink carnations and a three-tier wedding cake which was topped with three silver anchors. The cake was cut with the groom's sword.

Leaving for Nassau, the bride wore a green imported wool suit with black accessories and Persian Lamb jacket.

Staff Party

Sixty staff members of Goodwill Enterprises were guests at a Christmas dinner in the Ampulex Hall given by the Quita Nichol Auxiliary. Mrs. W. C. Nichol, honorary member, was special guest.

Mrs. E. T. Lea welcomed the guests. Mrs. J. S. MacKay convoked the dinner arrangements, assisted by Mrs. George McMorran, Mrs. E. F. W. Cox, Mrs. E. Symons and Mrs. V. August were in charge of decorations. Mr. G. Clarke played the organ and Mr. Owen Fowler was Ah Fu Yu, the magician.

Age No Barrier

WOODSTOCK, Ont. (CP)—An energetic white-haired secretary in her late 60s says age should never be a barrier to a woman who wishes to further her education.

Mrs. Arthur H. Melson speaks from experience. She left school to work at the age of 14 and in her early 30s decided she would like to complete high school.

After whizzing through her secondary school studies with a private tutor, she began taking university extension courses and after 20 years of study, received her bachelor of arts degree from the University of Western Ontario.

Mrs. Melson has won several awards for essays, including second prize in a national essay contest sponsored by the French and has studied German and Spanish.

She has also made a scientific collection of ferns and wildflowers—one often borrowed by her latest project has been knitting colorful winter caps—when interviewed she had just completed cap number 341.

WESTERN RED CEDAR SIDING

Nature has endowed the giant red cedar of British Columbia with every quality a home owner could ask for in a versatile construction material with its "built-in" weather resistance, insulation value, working ease and, above all, inherent beauty.

Western Red Cedar is the traditional choice of architects everywhere for every application. The attractive grain and warm colors of this fine wood blend beautifully with any home style, modern or traditional—in any setting, urban or rural.

"BEVEL" SIDING is manufactured in 5 SIZES

1/2"x6" 1/2"x8" 1/2"x10" 1/2"x12"

5 GRADES CLEAR "A" "B" "C" "D" "E"

Test Ban Pact Revives Hopes

By CARMAN CUMMING
Canadian Press Staff Writer

"The glacial disarmament problem has begun at last to melt a bit and to move."

The statement, by U.S. delegate Charles Stille at the United Nations, typified the cautious new hope that developed on disarmament during 1963.

After years of tedious negotiations and the exchange of millions of words, the world began to wonder if disarmament might after all be more than a rosy dream.

FIRST CLEAR SIGN

The first clear sign of thaw came June 10 when the late president Kennedy announced agreement with the British and Russians "that high-level discussions shortly begin in Moscow looking towards early agreement on a comprehensive test ban treaty."

Once started, events moved quickly.

On July 15, negotiators from the three big nuclear powers sat down around a green-topped table at the Kremlin—in a mood of friendliness hard to believe only a few months after the Cuban showdown.

KHRUSHCHEV PUSHES

Premier Khrushchev, jovial and optimistic, suggested that they "start off by signing the agreement right away."

Within a fortnight, the historic pact had been initiated between nuclear tests in the atmosphere, outer space and under water. The sticky problem of underground testing was left to abeyance with the West still insisting on on-site inspections to prevent cheating.

BREAKTHROUGH

The treaty was hailed as a breakthrough, a cold-war turning point. But the optimism was dimmed as France and Communist China refused to sign and continued working towards their own nuclear forces.

When the United Nations General Assembly opened its fall session in September, two phrases were heard frequently: "Cold war pause," and "next step."

Besides the mood of optimism, observers noted two trends at the UN resulting from the test ban treaty.

They said the non-aligned countries appeared to have eased up on the pressure usually put on the big powers to move towards disarmament.

There was also some noticeable disillusionment about the role of the UN in disarmament.

"Only two men count in this world," one diplomat said, watching his colleagues file into the General Assembly chamber.

"We can talk here as much as we like but it doesn't mean anything until the man in Washington and the man in Moscow decide to move."

FACT ACHIEVED

Nevertheless, the "next step" came under the UN umbrella as the U.S. and Russia agreed, in a UN resolution, to bar nuclear weapons from outer space.

The assembly also passed another series of disarmament resolutions, mainly calling for action by the 18-nation disarmament conference resuming discussions in Geneva in January.

The main hope for progress there was in two areas:

1. An agreement on safeguards against surprise attack, including an East-West exchange of observer posts;

2. Measures to curb the spread of nuclear weapons.

But diplomats noted that these also were collateral measures; that the big problem of comprehensive disarmament still had not been denied.

As External Affairs Minister Paul Martin put it in a UN speech in October:

"It is a sobering thought at this time that as yet not a single rocket, not a bomber, not an atomic bomb, not a thermonuclear warhead, not even a machine-gun has been put on the scrapheap as a result of agreement to disarm."

Woman MP Has Plenty To Tell the UN

By CARMAN CUMMING

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Mrs. Margaret Konantz came to the United Nations armed with a sense of humor, a direct approach and information—the first-hand kind.

In an organization bedevilled by fourth-hand information, Mrs. Konantz tends to use her own.

LOTS OF DATA

And the Liberal member for Winnipeg South, Canada's delegate on the General Assembly's social committee, has a formidable supply.

Her stack of loose-leaf notebooks record meticulously facts, impressions and conversations — hundreds of them — from more than a score of countries she has visited for the UN children's fund.

One result is that she avoids glib conclusions and "easy" solutions, a frequent failing of UN delegates. She can always flip the page and give the other side of the story.

DEFINITE ON RACISM

But on one subject, racism, she is definite and succinct. "Surely the war taught us something," she says.

When Mrs. Konantz talks about discrimination her eyes take on a sharp edge. The next moment they may be quietly thoughtful or bright with humor.

Erect and graceful, the Canadian delegate's manner is youthful and animated, despite grey hair. She is a grandmother, but admits smilingly that she didn't make a point of stressing this in the campaign before her election in April.

Her political background? "I literally have no background in politics."

She explains that her mother served three terms in the Manitoba Legislature after the First World War. When she married, her husband made her promise to stay out of politics.

"I thought, darn it all, I'm going to do something—I'm not going to be lost."

Within weeks she was in Uruguay, at the invitation of American friends, looking on at a conference of the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization.

"I didn't even know what UNESCO stood for," she says. But from that point one place led quickly to another and her literary reads like the index of a geography book.

Along the way she talked to people—important people, ordinary people, progressives, moderates, racists. Between trips she spoke widely in Canada and worked for agencies related to the UN.

Office Parties On Decline

VANCOUVER (CP) — The number of office parties involving liquor is declining each year, says the Vancouver Traffic and Safety Council. Many offices no longer officially celebrate the festive season, and at least one firm has "substituted" party for employees' children.

Achtung! The Harsh Voice Booms

By DON GAIN
Colonist Military Reporter

I was on my way to Paris. I had left Soest in Germany about 11:15 a.m. by train. Buying my ticket was a minor ordeal. First of all, because I left on short notice, I counted on using a traveller's cheque to buy my ticket.

Eggs Fall Again

For the second week in succession egg prices in Victoria have dropped by two cents a dozen. Heavy deliveries from the prairie provinces are responsible for the latest drop.

Six Acres Approved For School

Department of education has approved the purchase of six acres of land by the Sooke district 62 school board.

The property, part of the Wells estate, will be the site for the proposed junior high school at Metchosin.

Now the board will survey the land which will include the right-of-way to the Metchosin road.

The department still has to approve the school board's choice of Herb Bate, contractor, who tendered the low bid of $19,284 for the three-room addition at Metchosin.

King Heads Civil Servants

F. G. King will head the Victoria Branch of the Civil Service Association of Canada as president for the 1964 season.

Other officers elected were R. A. Campbell, vice-president, and Miss Lily B. Northam, secretary-treasurer.

Executive members elected are R. N. Clegg, R. J. Kelly, A. E. Pendray, Lawrence Fieldhouse, L. Davis, R. L. Fiddick, J. West and B. J. Harford.

... frustrated

driver for his trouble without feeling I would be on the train without money for food or in a Paris railway station for the night.

If it is like the German stations I have seen so far there will be no benches or seats of any kind.

I tipped the driver. It wasn't all that big, about a dollar, but I knew it could have been the difference between contentment and embarrassment somewhere. Somewhat miffed by these minor frustrations I went through the ticket gate and stood on the platform to wait for my train.

Silly to get upset about such little things, I told myself. Think big!

I looked down the platform at a group of Germans standing stolidly looking at me. Just how loudly had I said "this is ridiculous" and how many times? Maybe they were the ones who were waiting at the wicket while I went through my exercise in foreign travel.

Frustration

In retrospect I told myself the real frustration was in being certain I had every eventually covered and then finding out I hadn't.

"Achtung! Achtung!" a harsh voice boomed over the station loudspeaker.

For everybody who remembers the Second World War these words will always have a chilling connotation.

I shivered slightly and looked around. I couldn't see any Spitfires.

The voice went on. I didn't understand a word. I looked at the Germans. They hadn't moved. It couldn't be an emergency.

Probably all the voice had said was that my train would leave on another track or some such simple but important information.

I would probably never know, or not at any rate until I had landed somewhere miles out of my way.

A train came in. I showed a uniformed man my ticket. He pointed to the train. Apparently I was on the right track.

Green, Lush

I settled down on the train enjoying the pleasant vistas of the German countryside, green and lush for the time of year. And I was thinking about Paris and the wonderful things I would see.

Suddenly a nagging thought plunked itself down in my mind. What if Ralph Smith didn't know what he was talking about when he said there was an exchange office in the Cologne station?

By now I was becoming philosophical. So I settled down to the trip telling myself that if there was one, there was one, and if there wasn't one, there wasn't, and to hell with it.

It turned out all right. There was one.

Money Splits Friends

ROMFORD, England (UPI)—Let's dance, said Boyce Burne to his neighbor's wife.

Mrs. Wilma Rowe said certainly, and while they were dancing at an RAF ball in London's Dorchester Hotel they won a prize—two return tickets to New York.

The airline tickets threaten to break up a 10-year friendship between the Burnes and the Rowes. Neither family is prepared to let the winners go on the flight together.

Burne says he asked Mrs. Rowe to dance only because her husband hadn't been able to come to the ball and he didn't want her to feel lonely.

He said: "I felt that as Mrs. Rowe had been my guest for the evening she shouldn't mind handing over the flight ticket to my wife."

But when the Rowes refused to give him the ticket Burne offered them £50.

"Her husband had the check to refuse and offered me £50 for my own ticket," Burne said.

Mrs. Rowe said: "I'm trying to find out whether I am legally entitled to the ticket. Then there won't be any more argument."

Sorting out seagulls and ducks at Clover Point, favorite birding place, is Alan Poynter, chairman of Victoria Natural History Society's bird group. —(Bill Reith)

Watchers All Set

Goal: Ancient Murrelets

The birds here don't know it yet, but they are going to be counted Dec. 21.

About 45 birdwatchers of the Victoria Natural History Society will be in the field with spotting scopes, binoculars and notebooks identifying and tallying the birds.

Last year, 121 kinds of birds were counted, three short of the Canadian record of 125 species seen in Victoria in December 1961.

A total of 44,146 birds were counted here last year, including 3,396 robins and 4,136 pine siskins.

The highest North American count came from Cocoa, Fla., in 1962, where 197 species were sighted.

The most abundant species recorded last year were the starlings, with a total of 10,456,414, while skylarks were reported only in Victoria and Hilo, Hawaii.

Bird Count Dec. 21

Victoria's bird watchers will be looking this year for such exciting feathered fare as pine grosbeaks, great horned owls and ancient murrelets, as well as such routine birds as gulls, robins, crows and starlings.

Apart from the thrill of finding a rare bird, enthusiastic birdwatchers look forward to travel, adventure, love of wild places and the companionships of other naturalists from many parts of the world.

Lovers Pop In ## Dark Down There!

FOLKESTONE, England (AP)—Four Folkestone families want their local taxes cut because of the dark at the foot of the stairs.

"It seems that every young man in the district who is walking his girl home at night drops in at the entrance of our flats," said Albert Field, 68. "In my young days I had better ideas than a cold stone stairway."

Mrs. Field blamed the bus stop outside.

"These couples seem to pop in while waiting for a bus," she said. "It's really very embarrassing."

Local taxes are based on the value of one's house or apartment. Field and his neighbors say the gungos on the stairs reduce the value of their apartments and want their taxes cut $12 a year each.

Arts Situation Good Here Says Symphony Director

By TED GANKELL.

Art for art's sake may be a joke to some people but it's a serious thing with Victoria Symphony's new conductor, Otto-Werner Mueller.

And he's strongly opposed to art being the prostitute of social prestige.

He feels Victoria people are sincere about their support of art and interest in the arts.

HEALTHIER HERE
The situation here is healthier, than in Vancouver, for example, where a number of groups supporting their pet artistic ventures quarrel among themselves.

The young conductor and music director of the Victoria Symphony said that although he hadn't been here long enough to really take the artistic pulse of the city, he felt the arts have a greater chance of working together than in larger cities.

CIVIC THEATRE

Mr. Mueller welcomed the idea of a civic theatre as planned for Centennial Square, but he stressed the importance of atmosphere and the need for representation of more than one art form.

He deplored the fact that a person going to see an artistic film was faced, before going in, with popcorn and soft-drink machines, neon signs and the advertisements for next week's sex film.

ART FORMS
It's important, Mr. Mueller thinks, that young people should be exposed to more than one art form, and he would like to see displays of paintings or other art forms in theatres where plays and musical works are produced.

But although atmosphere is important, the building isn't. He told of conducting in a magnificent new theatre well equipped, roomy but without life.

These artists were the junior and intermediate Barley choirs, conducted by Vera Barclay and accompanied by Miss Gail Wall.

More than 60 strong and ranging in age from five to 16, they presented several of the old favorite carols such as Deck the Halls, O Come All Ye Faithful, Away in a Manger and Silent Night.

In addition, they offered a number of other carols and arrangements by composers including Gustav Holst, W. H. Anderson and Burton Kurth.

Zoo officials said the ibex jumped over the fence only three hours after she was presented to an eligible ibex bachelor.

"If you see the bear, don't shoot," they added. "Just call him Charlie and he'll behave."

Mueller

"It was like playing in a big supermarket," he said. On the other hand he recalled the auditorium at Duncan. He said the music had life although on his first visit to the building he feared for its quality. But the responsive audience helped.

"Anywhere music is played it is a church of art and music will sound better in a shack, played for people who love it, than when played in the most beautiful theatre for millionaires who don't care," he said.

NEVER FOUND
Of Canadian music he said he never found unprejudiced reception of Canadian work.

When people know a work is Canadian, some are excited because it is Canadian, some are opposed to it for the same reason.

Mr. Mueller has conducted Canadian work in Russia and recordings for German radio.

WELL RECEIVED
The music was well received.

Now he'd like to present some Canadian music in Canada without disclosing its origin to see what the reaction would be.

Mr. Mueller ascribed the popularity of folk singing to the hidden desire most people have for artistic expression.

Folk music is simple and some people are very shy about expressing their artistic desires. They seek the protection of the popular because there is a greater chance of acceptance.

Annual Carol Tea Gay and Colorful

The Victoria Musical Art Society ushered in the Christmas Season in gay, musical and colorful style Saturday afternoon with its 15th annual Carol Tea in the Crystal ballroom of the Empress Hotel.

The ballroom was completely filled by the time that the performing artists appeared in procession from the main doors to the stage.

These artists were the junior and intermediate Barley choirs, conducted by Vera Barclay and accompanied by Miss Gail Wall.

More than 60 strong and ranging in age from five to 16, they presented several of the old favorite carols such as Deck the Halls, O Come All Ye Faithful, Away in a Manger and Silent Night.

In addition, they offered a number of other carols and arrangements by composers including Gustav Holst, W. H. Anderson and Burton Kurth.

Sybil Gives Richard His Freedom

MEXICO (UPI)—Actor Richard Burton's wife divorced him Monday, removing half the legal roadblock for him to marry Elizabeth Taylor if he has a mind to.

A friend of Burton and Miss Taylor said, "I don't think Liz and Burton are going to wait very long. It looks as if they will be married soon."

Miss Taylor is still married to singer Eddie Fisher, who has indicated that he, too, soon will file for a divorce.

WILL HELP OUT

(Fisher said in Hollywood he would "help out in any way I can" if Miss Taylor wants a divorce so she can marry Burton.)

"I just talked to my attorney, Louis Nizer, and as a matter of fact he's meeting with Elizabeth's attorney right now in New York," Fisher said. "Mr. Nizer said to make no further comment and I will follow his advice."

PROPERTY SETTLED

Mr. Sybil Burton, living in New York, and Burton arranged details for a property settlement and custody of their two children before she filed for the divorce at Puerto Vallarta, the tiny Mexican coast fishing village where the actor recently finished making the movie Night of the Iguana.

Miss Taylor came to Puerto Vallarta to share a villa with him. She had no part in the movie, but was on the set almost every day.

Burton's lawyer, Aaron Froesch of New York, went to Puerto Vallarta and was present in civil court Monday when the divorce was granted. Burton also was represented by Mexican attorney Jose Lopez-Portillo. Mrs. Burton was represented by Francisco Lopez-Figueroa.

CRUELTY CHARGE

Froesch said that Mrs. Burton charged her husband with treating her cruelly and inhumanly and that he was "in the constant custody of another woman."

The "other woman" obviously referred to Miss Taylor, but she was not mentioned in the suit by name.

CAN VISIT FATHER

The decree gives custody of their two children, Katherine, 6, and Jessica, 4, to Mrs. Burton. The children will have free visitation rights "at all times" with their father.

Mrs. Burton also obtained the Burton home in Geneva, Switzerland, a trust fund for the two children and a substantial fund for herself. The attorney said that Burton retained "a fund out of their community property."

"There was no difficulty in formulating the property settlement" agreement prior to the divorce, the lawyer said.

Mrs. Burton is expected to leave New York shortly for her Geneva home.

Ava Leaves Film With Tony

PUERTO VALLARTA, Mexico (AP)—Movie star Ava Gardner has left Puerto Vallarta for Madrid after finishing work in the movie Night of the Iguana.

She was accompanied to Mexico City by a 26-year-old Mexican boatman named Tony, who has been teaching her water skiing.

Tony and Ava, who refused to be interviewed, were seen together frequently in Vallarta.

Holly Herbal Remedy

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

I have often commented in this column on the deep and abiding satisfaction that comes from owning one or two fruit trees — from picking your own sun-ripened fruit from your very own trees. The same could be said for owning your own holly tree, for certainly the freshly-cut holly from your own tree is far superior to the sprigs which have had to pass through the ordinary channels of trade.

According to legend, holly first appeared in the footsteps of Christ, the scarlet berries symbolizing the blood that was to be shed on the Cross. Actually, holly was known long before the Christian era — in fact, it was used by the ancient Romans to decorate their homes during the festival of Saturnalia in much the same way as we use it today.

Botanically, holly is Ilex, an old Latin name for the evergreen Holm oak tree, to which holly was supposed to bear some resemblance. The popular name holly is old Anglo-Saxon for holly. In some parts of Europe, the prickly kind is known as he-holly and the smooth-leaved varieties as she-holly, and superstition claims which ever kind is used in the home for Christmas decoration will indicate whether husband or wife will wear the pants during the forthcoming year!

It is hard for us to realize today that for many centuries holly has been valued for its medicinal properties. In former days the juice of the leaves were used as a cure for pleurisy, tetanus, jaundice, smallpox and various afflictions of the eyes. Culpeper recommended both the bark and leaves be made into fomentations to mend broken bones.

Even today the leaves of several species of holly are dried and used in some parts of the world as a substitute for tea. The best known is Ilex paraguensis, a South American holly that grows on riverbanks and on the sides of small streams.

This has been popularized under the name of Yerba Mate tea, supposedly with valuable tonic properties. The leaves of our common English holly, however, contain the same herbal virtues and can be mixed with ordinary tea or used as a substitute. The leaves are collected in June, late in the day when free from dew, then dried slowly and crushed, and are infused with boiling water as with real tea. Unfortunately, my ancient book on herbal lore doesn't say how many spoonfuls per pot!

Holly trees come in male, female and hermaphrodite forms. The male trees bear no berries; the females develop berries only when a husky young male is growing nearby, or when the open blossoms are treated with a tomato-setting hormone spray. The hermaphrodite types, carrying both male and female blossoms, will set a good crop of berries even when growing alone.

The tree we see most often here-about is the common English holly, Ilex aquifolium, with prickly pointed leaves and scarlet berries, but there are many variations and varieties available. Probably the most reliable from the standpoint of berry production is J. C. van Thol, making a 12-foot tree with deep olive-green leaves free from prickles.

The variegated kinds are particularly attractive as Christmas decorations. Golden King is especially fine, with a narrow band of pure gold around the margins of the leaves. Golden Milkmaid is the reverse, yellow leaves with a margin of green, while Silver Queen has deep green leaves margined with a narrow band of silvery white.

Incidentally, it occurs to me the man who named Golden King and Silver Queen didn't know about the birds and the bees, for Golden King is a female while Silver Queen is a berry-less male!

STANTON DELAPLANE'S Postcard from Japan

The Credit Card Geisha!

KYOTO—Kyoto was the capital of Japan for a thousand years. The military Shoguns moved to Tokyo. But they kept the Emperor and family here.

The Emperor lived very well. They developed a delicate cooking known as Kyo. And they developed the ever-loving geisha girl.

This is the traditional home of the geisha. The famous schools here teach her to play the samisen. They teach her to make flower arrangements and to do the tea ceremony which is better for you than an hour on the psychiatric couch.

When she graduates, she is registered, pays a geisha tax and is in great demand.

What is new with the geisha business? Well may you ask. The newest thing is the credit card geisha. "Actually the girls don't like being put on your Diner's Club card," said the man from Kyoto. "It seems they have to wait for their money until Diner's Club collects from you. They prefer cash."

Even so, he said, the geisha has had to go along with the rest of the civilized, credit world. Her costume is a thousand years old. But her heart belongs to Big Daddy at Diner's Club.

The geisha houses are located in the Gion district. This is the entertainment area along the Kano river which runs through the middle of the town. It is a district of paper lantern lights and exotic peeps into courtyards where stone fountains drop water delicately on Japanese pools with vermilion bridges.

In the evening, the geisha go clinkety-clack on wooden geta to their appointments with a mama-san holding an umbrella above the elaborate hair-do.

It's a very expensive wig. In the times of the Emperor, the poor geisha had to sleep on a pillow that only supported her neck—a wooden affair like that of a horse collar. That kept her hair in order.

Now we have wigs and credit cards. It was a Japanese Air Lines party. Therefore, it was very proper. The geisha brought a maiko with her. The maiko is an apprentice geisha.

With all the years of training, it seems to me the geisha always winds up playing patty-cake with the customers. The geisha is a game player. She plays the "scissors, paper, rock" game. And I imagine several others.

This is considered a swinging evening on the town by the Japanese gentlemen. It is like spending the night playing spin-the-bottle.

Along with the games and the dinner goes plenty of sake—the hot rice wine.

You drink it in tiny cups. The geisha does the pouring.

At evening's end, you put her on your Diner's Club account. She gives you the receipt. For tax purposes.

The Little World of SHEILAH GRAHAM

Hamlet Anti-Climax

Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton, now basking in the Mexican sun, will be husband and wife by the time Richard must go to New York and Toronto to star in Hamlet.

More news from the just finished Night of the Igana. The most fascinating thing about the whole experience was seeing Michael Wilding, the ex-mate of Miss Taylor, helping her secretary carry Burton's lunch up the pathway to his house.

Ava Gardner who went to New York for a few days on the way home to Madrid, was happy making the picture and working for John Huston. She was always on the set early. Even when she was not called for, she took the boat trip to the location, just to sit around and watch. Her only local crush was the 23-year-old boatman who had a terrific crush on her.

Sue Lyons had better find out what fiancé Hampton Franchon the Third, is doing. My most recent report was that the landlord of his most recent apartment in Hollywood, was planning to sue for unpaid rent. Sue, whom somebody described as "our 90-year-old teen-ager" has been hitting those candy bars again. And as any mother of an adolescent will tell you, candy is not good for the complexion.

Message on the sidewalk of the Rivoli Theatre where Cleopatra is showing in New York—"Don't worry Sybil, Dickie will get his, Marc our words." She isn't worrying, honestly.

In England, if you merely mention the popular singers, The Beatles, you become popular yourself. Comedienne Doris Bryan made a record. All I Want For Christmas Is A Beatie, and it is now a best seller.

Christmas Of Old Ritualistic

Away back, far, far back,

Christmas began for me, really began for me, when a box arrived by express from our cousins in the country. It was a huge box (that's how it looked to me!) and it always contained four chickens (two for Christmas, two for New Year's) and a quantity of cold, cold apples.

Everything about Christmas was a ritual, large or small. Each ritual was important, each immutable. As far back as I could remember, the box from the country had always come, and I supposed that was the way it would always be.

It would arrive (this is what I thought) just before, just after, or just at the moment that my mother was making the Christmas cake.

My mother made wonderful Christmas cake. It was dark and moist and loaded with fruit and chips of almonds and coated with a thick icing that was as good as candy.

Next to Christmas itself, Christmas Eve was the most exciting day of the year. We put up our tree on Christmas Eve.

And when it was finished, with everything in place, it still looked like a tree that had been decorated, and not like a host of decorations supported by a stick. That seemed to me to be the proper way for a Christmas tree to look. It still does.

The people who called to make deliveries seemed to be exuberant on Christmas Eve as if they had caught something of my own happiness and were letting it grow on them.

The day passed and the night came and my father fixed the fireplace so my sister and I could hang up our stockings for Santa Claus. We had a gas fireplace, and my father removed the cover of beaten brass and stood it against the mottled green tiles under the fumed oak mantel so we could hang up our long cotton stockings, mine black, hers white.

And I never wanted to go to bed, but when the time came and I could resist no longer, I always made up my mind that this time I would stay awake all through the night until the very moment that Santa Claus arrived.

What signal awakened me, I do not know, but it was always early, hours before normal waking up time. And on this morning, I yelled at my sister (nobody muzzled you on Christmas morning) and we rushed downstairs (nobody lived in bungalows) into the parlor (nobody called it a living room) where under the tree in the dim light we could see two separate piles, and knew that Santa Claus had come and gone.

And I can remember my mother and father standing in the doorway, smiling and savoring the sweetness of the moment, a moment I was to repeat in their stead years afterwards myself.

The Gifts of Christmas

By JOHN J. STEWART
Fifth of a Series

Deep sorrow pervaded the elegant home of Jairus, the proud ruler of the synagogue in Capernaum. Jairus' little 12-year-old daughter, his only daughter, lay near death.

In anguish he and his wife sat at the dying child's bedside in the darkened room. All their prayers and efforts to heal her had proved futile. Helplessly they watched as she grew weaker and weaker. They had given up hope.

Suddenly they heard a noise in the street, as if of a large throng of people approaching. A servant whispered that it was Jesus, the Nazarene, with His disciples, passing through the city.

Jesus, the Nazarene! Feared and despised by Jairus and all the priestly class throughout Israel, who were jealous of his great popularity with the masses, and fearful of their own future unless some way could be found to put a stop to Him.

Jairus' face hardened. True, he could find no real fault with the teachings or conduct of the Nazarene. True too, whatever He was, Jesus did have great power of healing. This Jairus knew of a certainty. He looked down at his little daughter, breathing her last. Only for a moment did he wrestle with his pride. Quickly he left the room and dashed into the street, his robes flying as his sandaled feet pounded along the cobble stones.

Urgently, desperately he pushed his way through the multitude that surrounded Jesus. Dropping to his knees at the feet of the Master, Jairus implored, "My little daughter lieth at the point of death. I pray Thee, come and lay Thy hands on her, that she may be healed; and she shall live."

In compassion Jesus agreed to go with him. But as they neared his house, a servant came running out and told Jairus it was too late, his daughter was dead.

Jesus looked at the proud ruler, his head bowed in grief. "Be not afraid," He said, "only believe."

They proceeded on to the house, where the servants and others were already making a great tumult with their loud weeping and wailing.

"Why make ye this ado?" asked Jesus. "The girl is not dead, but sleeps."

The hired mourners laughed him to scorn. So Jesus put them out of the house. Then, with Jairus and his wife, and Peter, James and John, Jesus entered the girl's room.

Gently He took her by the hand. "Damsel, I say unto thee, arise."

Mine Blast Kills Nine

HELPER, Utah (AP)—An explosion ripped the depths of a coal mine near this central Utah town yesterday, killing nine men and injuring one.

The explosion occurred at the face, or end, of one of the mine's two shafts, both of which extend a mile into a mountain in what is known as Hartsdale Canyon.

"They must have hit a pocket of gas," said George Diamanti, mine co-owner. "That's all I can figure out."

State industrial commission officials at the scene speculated that one of two things caused the explosion: coal dust or methane gas.

Held 10 Days

Hostages Freed In Bolivia

LA PAZ, Bolivia (CP)—Nineteen persons, four of them Americans, were released Monday night after being held hostage for 10 days by striking Bolivian tin miners.

The hostages had been held at Catavi, a mining town high in the Andes, in retaliation for the arrest of two union leaders.

VOTE APPROVAL

Earlier Monday, the tin miners voted approval of government terms for releasing the prisoners.

Some miners strongly objected to the release.

JEEP CONVOY

U.S. Ambassador Douglas Henderson, in Oruro about 30 miles from Catavi, said he was informed the four Americans would go to Oruro by jeep convoy and be flown here this morning. He did not say if the other prisoners were in the convoy.

Before the release of the hostages, a miners' commission took a five-hour trip to verify withdrawal of government troops from the area.

Letters Back To Front

BENNINGTON, Vt. (UPI)—The Bennington rescue squad has decided that flashing lights are not enough to attract the attention of motorists to a speeding ambulance.

Neither is the word "ambulance" on the front.

But the "scandalum" is just right—if the motorist sees it in his rear-view mirror—it's "ambulance" lettered backwards.

Columbia Pact

B.C. TO GET $420,000,000

OTTAWA (CP)—British Columbia will get around $420,000,000 from the United States for the block of Columbia River power it is entitled to under terms of a recently negotiated agreement, informed sources said Monday. B.C. is expected to accept the proposal.

The money would cover the estimated $400,000,000 cost of the Columbia Treaty dams and leave several millions over to cover part of the cost of developing domestic power at Mica Creek.

Depending on various factors, the U.S. lump-sum payment for about 1,300,000 kilowatts of hydro-electric capacity might fall on either side of $120,000,000.

It will depend partly on the schedule of payments by the U.S. over the nine-year construction period for dams at Duncan Lake, High Arrow and Mica on the Columbia River system.

URS RIVER

These dams would curb the seasonally-turbulent river and allow American generators downstream to churn out extra power, half of which would be credited to B.C. This is to be sold.

Additional flood-control payments by the U.S. also are involved.

Informants say that the U.S. price of 3.75 mills per kilowatt hour works out to about four mills in Canadian funds.

Divorced

Charging cruelty, Sybil Burton yesterday obtained a Mexican divorce from actor husband Richard, paving the way for Burton to marry Elizabeth Taylor, Attorney for Miss Taylor's husband singer Eddie Fisher, met yesterday in New York with Miss Taylor's lawyer to pave way for their divorce. In Hollywood Fisher said, "I will help in any way I can." (See story Page 37).

Lumber Label Passes

WASHINGTON (CP)—The U.S. Senate gave quick approval Monday to a bill which would force Canadian lumber to be marked with the country of origin and force most other goods to bear the country-of-origin label each time they are repackaged for sale in the U.S.

The main bill and its lumber amendment won passage on a voice vote. The legislation now goes to the House of Representatives for passage before it is sent to President Johnson for signature.

Stock Deals

Justice, B.C. Man Named Beneficiaries

TORONTO (CP)—An Ontario day as beneficiaries of deals in Supreme Court justice and a former British Columbia government superintendent of brokers were named in court Monday.

Mr. Justice Leo Landreville, mayor of Sudbury when the company won a gas franchise there, and J. S. Stewart Smith, the retired B.C. official, were linked to NONG in evidence given at the preliminary hearing of NONG President Ralph K. Farris on three perjury charges.

DEALS IN 1957

Vancouver broker John McGraw testified the deals in 1957—before NONG stock was listed on the market—netted the judge 7,500 shares and the B.C. man 600 shares. They were worth between $10 and $13 at the time, now about $17.

A similar transaction was described by McGraw as netting 600 shares for G. Kelly McLean, a nephew of former Ontario mines minister Philip Kelly and at the time an assistant to Farris in NONG.

Eight-Year Sentence For 'Vicious' Killing

Escape Gear Didn't Work

OTTAWA (CP)—CF-100 jet planes have been grounded by the RCAF because the escape mechanism for the crew didn't function properly. Associate Defence Minister Carlin told the Commons yesterday. Modifications will take two days.

Two airmen were killed recently at St. Hubert, Que., in the crash of a CF-100. One was injured in a CF-100 crash at the same station last week.

VANCOUVER (CP)—Georgina Rustad, 52, was sent to the penitentiary for eight years Monday for what Supreme Court Justice Harold McInnes described as the "vicious" and "sadistic" slaying of her 80-year-old mother-in-law.

Before sentence was passed Mrs. Rustad told the judge: "I still plead not guilty my lord."

She showed no sign of emotion as the eight-year sentence was pronounced.

FOUND GUILTY

Mrs. Rustad was found guilty Dec. 5 by all-male jury which brought in a verdict reducing the charge to manslaughter from non-capital murder. She was convicted in the June 10, 1960 death of her crippled mother-in-law, Mrs. Thine Rustad.

The old woman's body was found at the foot of a flight of stairs in her home. Her car was crossed over her body. She had been beaten.

"The jury has found that you killed your mother-in-law," said Mr. Justice McInnes and went on to describe the attack on the old lady as

Kidnap Victim 'Detective'

The 19-year-old, nervous and in darkness, counted stairs, memorized airplane sounds and walking distances, and—in a moment when his eyes were uncovered—spotted the name of a hamburger stand on a wrapper.

Frank Sinatra Sr. had reported Saturday after the case broke that his son provided information on the Canoga Park house where his son was held captive.

"You're a day early, chums. The 500 Fund Toy Auction is tonight," Maynard Auction Room assistant yesterday told early birds Wayne Smith, 5 (left), Paul Smith, 8, and Bobby Elliott, 10. —(William Boucher)

500 Fund Auction

It's Toy Sale Day!

Toys that have brought joy to the hearts of youngsters in the past and will again, plus toys that are new, will go under the auctioneer's hammer tonight.

These are the toys donated by citizens of Greater Victoria for auction in Maynard's 500 Fund Toy Auction, which starts tonight at 7:30 p.m. in Maynard's Auction Rooms, 733 Johnson Street. Auctioneer Dan Bradley, for the third year in a row, will be knocking the wide selection of toys down to the highest bidders.

Citizens bidding on the toys will be getting a bargain in more than one way.

They will be getting something to delight their youngsters when they find the toys under the trees and they will know that all proceeds from the auction will go to swell the 500 Fund and bring joy to Greater Victoria's 500 most needy families.

Four-Year Sentence For Rape

VANCOUVER (CP) — Arthur William Gourlay, 20, of Vancouver was sentenced Monday to four years in the B.C. Penitentiary for the rape of a 20-year-old girl in Stanley Park here July 9.

Mr. Justice McInnes said in deciding the sentence he considered the fact that the girl attacked was "rather lax in her attitude toward men . . . and in a measure she led you on to believe that she would accede to your desires."

BRUTAL ASSAULT
 However, he said he could not ignore Gourlay's brutal assault on the girl when she refused his advances.

The defendant's lawyer, Harry Rankin, asked that Gourlay be considered little more than a boy and be sent to Hanes Correctional Institute so as to avoid the influence of hardened criminals in B.C. Penitentiary.

Mr. Justice McInnes refused, noting that evidence before him indicated Gourlay had "up to the present time . . . led a particularly useless and irresponsible life."

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Private secretaries, posh offices, air-conditioned autos and executive washrooms "are tension-saving devices that get better mileage out of executives," says Dr. Robert Turfboer, an industrial psychiatrist.

Executive comforts "are legitimate symbols of responsibility and brain power," he said in an interview.

Turfboer is psychiatric consultant for The New York Times and the Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Company, and a clinical instructor at the Yale University School of Medicine.

"I believe in status symbols as a means of identification," said Turfboer.

"At a large business convention you find all the delegates wear name tags. This is so everyone will know who they are. On the street or in the office, there are symbols that show a man's position—the private secretary, the personal barber, the big black limousine.

"People need symbols in proportion to their status. Even the street sweeper likes a new broom."

You know what you like in whiskeys. You've probably been living with the one kind for five, ten, maybe twenty years. All we ask is one minute. We think that's all it will take to change your mind. That, and merely one taste of a whisky called Time.

You'll find you have never known a rye like this. The taste is light, warm, smooth. A gentle whisky—but not at all kind to old habits.

It gives you a lot to think about for 60 seconds. Time enough.

They just wish they knew all her tricks—and commands needed to achieve them.—(Agnes M. Flett)

Saw Many Changes

Salt Spring Loses Early Resident

FULFORD—An old timer who saw many years of changes on Salt Spring Island died recently—Mrs. George (Florence) Borradaile, who was 87.

One of a large family, Mrs. Borradaile was the daughter of Rev. E. F. Wilson. Vicar of this diocese in 1895, he was also the founder of St. Mary's Church in Fulford in 1894, and founder and principal of the Shingwauk Indian schools at Sault Ste. Marie in Ontario, where Mrs. Borradaile was born.

LONG RIDE

As a young girl Mrs. Borradaile used to ride horseback or bicycle all the way from Ganges to Fulford with her brothers and sisters, and friends, to visit other friends, and ride all the way back.

Their trip took them over the Divide Hill, many times steeper than the present Tom Lee's Hill.

Nanaimo Radio Hams May Get New Job

NANAIMO—Nanaimo radio hams will have an opportunity to become part of the Amateur Radio Emergency Corps, an organization dedicated to furnishing organized emergency communications in time of disasters.

Dr. M. J. Smart, whose call letters are VE7ACE, has been selected by the American Radio League, with headquarters in Newington, Conn., to set up such an organization in Nanaimo.

Dr. Smart's title will be co-ordinator of the Amateur Radio Emergency Corps.

DUNCAN—Contributions toward the TB Christmas Seals campaign this year top last year's by $200 to date, said Kiwanis president and seals committee chairman Bob Corney. The total this year on December 14 was $3,800, and last year on December 15 was $200 less.

PORT ALBERNI—An inquest into the death of Rochester Peter, 59, opened in Port Alberni Monday evening and was adjourned.

Mr. Peter died in West Coast General Hospital Saturday less than 24 hours after being struck by a car as he walked on a city street.

According to RCMP, the vehicle which struck the man was driven a 16-year-old juvenile. It was making a left turn onto Dunbar Street after proceeding south on Third Avenue.

First report was that the victim had been taken to hospital for treatment of a broken arm. The accident occurred within a block of the scene where another pedestrian lost his life a year ago.

DUNCAN—No one was injured in a two-car crash at the junction of Cobble Hill Road with the Trans-Canada Highway at noon, Sunday, and damage was estimated at $500. Drivers involved were Charles E. J. Webber of Nanaimo, and Edward J. Cushing of Victoria.

NANAIMO—Nanaimo Fish and Game Club recently concluded a junior firearms safety course for students.

Examinations resulted in 15 students getting 100 per cent, nine 95 per cent, three 90 per cent, one 85 per cent with only one failure.

Helen McDougall, chairman of the pistol committee of the club, has asked for more range time to enable enthusiasts to get in more practice.

LADYSMITH—Police court: Hearsey Transport Ltd. Duncan, insecure load, $20; Joseph Mackinley, Ladysmith, speeding, $20; Chemainus juvenile boy, no driver's licence and driving unlicensed car, $25.

DUNCAN—Two juveniles were taken into custody following a burglary at the Mayo Company warehouse near Duncan over the weekend. An $85 transistor radio had been taken.

NANAIMO—Heading the Retarded Children's Association here for the third year is Capt. John Owens.

Directors are W. Colbeck, J. Reynolds, Mrs. E. Hibbs, Mrs.

Mable Bell and George Thompson.

Guest speakers at the meeting were Dr. Charlotte David, professor of psychology at UBC, and Mrs. Kay Jeun, first vice-president of the B.C. Association for Retarded Children.

Around The Island

NANAIMO—In magistrate's court Monday, Leslie Wayne Phillips was convicted of committing a public mischief, and pleaded guilty to driving without a driver's licence.

In an effort to avoid police, because he had no driver's licence, Phillips drove without lights down side streets in the south end and abandoned the vehicle in a back lane.

Next morning he reported his car stolen, causing the police to institute an investigation.

On the public mischief charge he was fined $15 and costs; on the licence charge $30 and costs.

Emil Mattson who was involved in an accident with David Bob, Dec. 14, pleaded guilty to failing to yield the right of way and was fined $35 and costs.

A similar charge against Arthur Woodhouse cost him $35. Woodhouse was involved in an accident on the Trans-Canada Highway in which damage totalled more than $1,000.

Speeding cases cost Glen Brown, Leonard Chan and Daryl Moxon $25 each.

Kenneth Oblak, whose car was struck by a train recently at the St. George Street level crossing, admitted pulling out and passing a car stopped to let the train go by. Oblak was fined $25 for failing to yield the right-of-way.

Hunting Rights

Manitoba Indians Win

OTTAWA (CP)—Manitoba hunting big game with the use of night lights. They were originally acquired by a magistrate's court on grounds that Manitoba hunting laws and regulations do not apply to Indians who are hunting on land to which they have access.

However, the Manitoba Appeal Court reversed this decision, ruling that although Indians are entitled to hunt for food on land to which they have a right of access, they cannot adopt hunting methods prohibited by provincial legislation.

The appeal court ruling was upset by the Supreme Court's judgment.

In their appeal here, Mr. Prince and Mr. Myron said all treaty Indians should know whether provincial laws take precedence over the right of hunting for food which was given to them under federal treaty.

Island Man Remanded For Sentence In East

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP)—Volunteer Fire Chief John Ryan of Lantzville, B.C., was remanded Monday for sentence on 16 charges of forgery and false pretences involving about $3,000 in bad cheques.

Ryan, who is also civil defence co-ordinator and teen town leader in his home community, is trying to sell some B.C. property to make complete restitution. He passed the bad cheques here in October while attending a convention in nearby Gravenhurst. He will be sentenced next Monday.

Tree, Flower Plan Pleases Beautifiers

City beautification committee yesterday looked at and liked a new proposal for landscaping traffic islands at the roundabout with flower tubs and trees but decided not to make any firm recommendation to city council.

The new scheme, to cost an estimated $4,910, will be considered by all the aldermen when council meets on Thursday and they will have a scale model to help them visualize its full impact.

City manager Dennis Young told the committee it promised to create "something more attractive than just the beautification of these traffic islands—this can become an outstanding focal point at the main entrance to the city."

Both the manager and parks administrator W. H. Warren stressed the importance of the trees in the landscaping plan.

The 10 trees placed in clumps on three islands would have no foliage below 10 feet from the ground, so that motorists' vision would not be obscured, but the greenery above would block off unattractive surroundings at the intersection.

The committee was also given a series of alternate proposals together with estimated costs.

To regrade the rocks now on the islands, place 26 concrete tubs containing shrubs and flowers in season, and install water lines would cost $3,220, the report said. Addition of concrete pads beneath the tubs would boost this total to $4,330.

To scrap the whole idea and go back to grass and tubbed shrubs would cost $3,735 or $5,010 with an irrigation system installed.

Comparative maintenance costs are estimated at $960 a year for grass or $735 if irrigation is included; with the cost running at about $600 for the rock treatment.

The proposal recommended by Mr. Young involves rock surface treatment of the islands. But it could be adapted, committee was told, to grass still using the tubs and trees.

Cost of planting 10 trees is about $1,000.

Past-President Says:

Millworkers Sent Firing Threat From International

DUNCAN—Immediate past president Bill Cox of the youngest union in British Columbia, the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada, yesterday criticized incidents he said occurred recently at New Westminster.

Mr. Cox, of Duncan, is an employee of the Crofton pulp mill. Last September 130 employees of Martin Paper Products at New Westminster revoked their membership in the International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers and since then have paid their union dues to the new union.

Mr. Cox said on Sept. 24 the New Westminster group applied for recertification with the Labor Relations Board, and finally they were informed by the board a hearing would be held next Jan. 14.

Meanwhile, president H. L. Hanson of the International Brotherhood at Nanaimo wrote to the New Westminster firm, and to individual employees, saying if they would not pay their dues to the international brotherhood they would be fired, Mr. Cox said.

The employees formerly belonged to Local 433 of the International Brotherhood.

LIFE THREATENED
While in Vancouver assisting Local 5 of the new union in its struggle to become established, he (Cox) received a phone call threatening his life if he didn't leave town, Mr. Cox said.

The Pulp and Paper Workers Union of Canada was formed last January and five locals so far have been established, including Castlegar, Crofton, Woodfridge, Prince Rupert, and Vancouver-New Westminster. The latter is Local No. 5.

The workers belonging to the new union, Mr. Cox said, unanimously decided to relinquish their membership with the international as they felt union affairs were handled too dictatorially from the New York headquarters without the membership being able to interfere.

Mr. Cox became the first president of the new national union but declined to run again for office in the union's December election.

No Decision On School

Education Minister Peterson said yesterday he will wait a full report from his senior officials before he decides whether

B.C. or the Greater Victoria School District should build a new vocational school here.

He indicated it may be cheaper for the province if the school is built under the authority of the school district—but cost was not the object.

It may be, he said, that a provincial regional vocational school would better fill the need because it would be part of an organization which assesses B.C. requirements as a whole.

Mr. Peterson said a regional vocational school for Greater Victoria is not a high-priority item at the moment but is part of his department's long-range planning.

Groups Seek Swan Killers

NANAIMO — Indignation about the shooting of a rare trumpeter swan, on a lake near Campbell River recently, is growing in fish and game circles.

Campbell River Fish and Game Club put up $200 in reward money for information leading to the arrest and conviction of a person or persons responsible for killing the wild swans.

The B.C. Federation of Fish and Game Clubs added $50 to this and now the Nanaimo branch has pledged $25.

A meeting of the Vancouver Island Affiliated Fish and Game Association is to be held in the Nanaimo clubhouse Jan. 19.

This will be an all day meeting beginning at 9:30 a.m.

Community United

Teddy Bear to Do Its Part For Cowichan Cheer Fund

DUNCAN — A little boy who feels he is too big for his plush teddy bear has handed over his favorite bed companion to the Cowichan Christmas Cheer Fund under one condition:

"He is an awfully good Teddy and the little boy who gets him must be very nice to him and cover him at night so he won't be cold."

This and similar stories heard by volunteer workers every day, show the united effort of the whole community preparing a cheerful Christmas for the needy.

Several large boxes have arrived at the fund headquarters recently, filled with good second-hand toys from the Port Renfrew Cubs.

One of the cheer fund workers, Jimmie Lesqueane is already planning to establish an all-year repair shop for toys, and several old age pensioners have pledged their assistance.

Don Rasmussen, manager of a Duncan dairy depot, has made arrangements for his donation of milk to be kept under refrigeration until needed.

Spokesman for the committee James Taylor said produce of all kinds and cash donations are still very urgently needed.

Also wanted are empty cardboard boxes and volunteer workers to help next Sunday.

BOXES PLACED

Boxes have been placed for donations at stores, and the Victoria Press office adjacent to the Chamber of Commerce office on the Trans-Canada Highway.

The press office is open from Monday until Friday from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. Anyone wishing to help this Sunday is asked to contact Wendell Ratcliffe at 746-7548.

Nanaimo Small Boat Basin Definitely Not Dead Issue

NANAIMO — Confirmation that the proposed Nanaimo small boat basin is far from being a dead issue has been received by city council from several Ottawa sources.

Council received a copy of a letter addressed to Colin Cameron, Nanaimo, M.P., from Hon. Walter Gordon, in which Mr. Gordon assured him that the department of public works' 1963-64 estimates contain an item of $500,000 representing the federal share of costs for a Nanaimo small boat harbor and that the department is currently re-examining the requirements for the program and its projected impact on the overall plan for improving the west coast fisheries development.

In a letter addressed to Mayor Pete Maffeo, Hon. Arthur Laing, minister of northern affairs and natural resources, assured the mayor that the matter of the boat harbor has not been deleted, but has not, as yet, been approved for expenditure by the treasury department.

A communication from the minister of public works, Hon. Jean Paul Deschatelets, also assured the city council that the boat harbor item has not been dropped. He said that before the work could begin, the department has been instructed to study the impact of the proposed harbor on the fishing industry in Nanaimo area.

NOT POSSIBLE

Because of the need of review it was not yet possible to proceed with the work.

The mayor also received a telegram from Prime Minister Pearson, who said that the Nanaimo small boat harbor is receiving sympathetic consideration in the 1964-65 estimates.

500 Silver Dollars Offered Polar Bears

NANAIMO—Frank Ney, Nanaimo realtor, has announced that 500 silver dollars will be given to those hardy enough to participate in a Boxing Day polar bear swim in the icy waters of Departure Bay.

Five dollars will be awarded to every entrant who stays in the water up to his neck for two minutes and one silver dollar to those who only dip and run.

Part of about $500 damage done over weekend to Ross Bay cemetery is examined by caretaker Ralph Ricketts, 420 Stannard. Vandals overturned 17

grave markers, shattering five marble headstone ornaments.—(W. A. Boucher)

$500 Damage

Tombstones Desecrated

Vandals caused about $500 damage over the weekend when they walked through Ross Bay cemetery, pushing over 17 headstones, shattering some of the monuments.

The vandals apparently entered the municipal-operated graveyard from Dallas Road, and left by May Street, pushing over the headstones along the path.

The desecration was discovered Monday morning by a cemetery worker, Carl Howard. He righted several monuments which had been overturned.

As headstones have been overturned in the past, he thought little of the incident until discovering the full extent of the damage. It is believed the incident took place Sunday night.

In most cases the damage was done to older monuments, when crosses atop them shattered with the impact.

Last year vandals caused about $3,000 damage to the same cemetery.

No Future Here

Dejected Songhees Chief Quits to Seek U.S. Job

By JACK FRY

Chief John Albany, discouraged about lack of job opportunities for Indians here, has resigned as leader of the Songhees Band and plans to look for a job in the United States.

Chief Albany, 47, married and the father of eight children ranging in age from 19 to three years, was laid off 2½ weeks ago from his job as a plater at a shipyard here.

It has happened to him so many times in the past 22 years he has worked at the shipyard that he will now try to find a steady job as an ironworker in Washington State, he said last night.

Chief Albany's letter of resignation was mailed Sunday night to the Cowichan Indian Agency at Duncan. An election probably will be held by the Songhees in January, to fill the remaining year of his two-year term.

News of the chief's resignation reached the Colonist last night from an unidentified spokesman for the Songhees Band, apparently even before councilmen Richard Albany and Alfred George had been informed.

NO FUTURE

Chief Albany later confirmed the report and said, "I don't see any future here for me or the rest of my family—it's just the same old down-trodden trail."

"You've got to have bread and butter on the table and it is reaching the point where we don't have that."

CLOSER HARMONY

Ironically, it was Chief John Albany who tried to bring closer harmony between Indians and non-Indians during his five-year leadership of the Songhees.

He encouraged Indians from all over Vancouver Island to participate in Indian Festivals held here during the month of May, during which the Reserve at Plummer Bay was opened to non-Indian spectators.

ONE DAY A YEAR

Just over a week ago, while still taking penicillin for a bout of pneumonia, he stood up at an Indian Friendship Feast and told politicians and Indians alike, "It would be good if the rest of the world could set aside one day a year to meet and feast as we are doing here tonight."

Now, Chief Albany is ready to join the migration of young Indians to the United States, in search of better job opportunities.

"Maybe I am getting tired and letting my people down, but just can't see myself going on with it," he said last night.

DREW BENEFITS

"I've been unemployed the biggest part of my life... I doubt if I was employed seven or eight weeks a year." He said he drew unemployment benefits when he was out of work.

"There's not much left in my life, and I've got to get something permanent." He plans to go to the U.S. after the Christmas holidays and "if I find something steady there I will send for my family."

"I don't think Indians have a chance over here at any kind of work. There is better opportunity over there, and I don't blame our young men for going over."

ESTABLISHED

"You would be surprised at the number of our young Canadian Indians who have got themselves established over there."

"I am going over there as an iron worker. I hope I succeed—if not, I'll end up being a berry picker," said Chief Albany.

The Indian spokesman who reported the chief's resignation said the news came as "a shock." He said Chief Albany "thought hard, tried all his life and worked for the betterment of his people. Maybe he thought there was no other way out."

Downtown Fair Jaycee Aim

Jaycees are going to try to keep their spring fair in downtown Victoria, the president of the Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce said last night.

City works committee yesterday told Jaycees they will not be allowed to have the Victoria Exhibition next year spread over Blanshard Street by Memorial Arena.

MAJOR ARTERY
Works committee members said Blanshard has become a major traffic artery and can no longer be closed off.

Bryan Holliday, Victoria Jaycee president, said last night that Jaycees are considering a number of possible ways to change the fair if they are denied the use of Blanshard Street. Included are reducing the size of the fair and moving it elsewhere.

But Jaycees still feel the fair belongs downtown, he said. "I don't think it will go better anywhere else," he said. "It is one of the few major attractions in the downtown area."

Massive Protest Planned

A last big plea against Saanich council's plan to rezone a chunk of Shelbourne Street for apartment use will be made at a public meeting Wednesday.

Every member of council is invited to attend the meeting, which will be held at St. Aidan's hall at the corner of Cedar Hill Cross Road and Richmond, at 8 p.m. Wednesday.

STRONG BLOCK

Council members were invited to hear the views of the ratepayers, who have mounted a strong opposition block to council's plans for medium density apartment zoning on both sides of Shelbourne between Mortimer and Ophir Streets.

Nearly 500 handbills announcing the public meeting have been distributed to homes in the Shelbourne area, said a spokesman for the opposition group.

Council gave first three readings to the bylaw last week and is scheduled to give final reading (formal adoption) at the Dec. 23 council meeting.

Curtis Pleads for Wonderland

A Saanich councillor stepped up to bat yesterday for the Wooded Wonderland at Beaver Lake.

Coun. Hugh Curtis said he will try to talk council into reconsidering last week's decision which amounted to "a death sentence" for the two-year-old children's fairyland attraction.

"I wonder how many members of council really understand the nature of that attraction and the reception it has been given by local residents and tourists alike," he said.

Council tabled a letter from city council seeking Saanich's concurrence for a five-year lease to Wonderland operator Alfred Petersen.

Mr. Petersen subsequently said that unless Saanich council changes its stand, he will be forced to take his fairyland figures to Tacoma, Wash., and let Beaver Lake become a swamp again.

"Any area needs young men of imagination and initiative such as Mr. Petersen has shown, and this latest move will do little more than force him to move to the United States," said Coun. Curtis.

"As a parent, I would miss it, and I am surprised that more parents and grandparents here have not come forth in support of this delightful place. "Petersen transformed a swamp into an attractive area, yet because of something which may or may not happen far in the future (a possible golf course or sale of the city-owned property for park purposes) we are running the risk of losing a development which we now have," Coun. Curtis said.

"I intend to bring it up again when the new council meets in January, and see if we can point out the emergency of the situation—taking it for those other things is sending it on its way to the U.S."

Special Treat in Store For Cowichan Youngsters

DUNCAN — The Cowichan branch of the Royal Canadian Legion has something very special in store for the youngsters who will attend the Legion Christmas party this Saturday.

The affair will be opened by the new pipe band of the Canadian Scottish Cadets, and besides singing Christmas carols the children will be entertained by 12-year-old dancer Cheryl Crothers from Cobble Hill, a magician, a comic team and, of course Santa Claus.

In lieu of individual Christmas gifts a large Christmas card will tell the youngsters the money has been used to feed hungry children in Hong Kong.

The Gifts of Christmas

The Gift of Jairus to His Wife

By JOHN J. STEWART
Fifth of a Series

Deep sorrow pervaded the elegant home of Jairus, the proud ruler of the synagogue in Capernaum. Jairus' little 12-year-old daughter, his only daughter, lay near death.

In anguish he and his wife sat at the dying child's bedside in the darkened room. All their prayers and efforts to heal her had proved futile. Helplessly they watched as she grew weaker and weaker. They had given up hope.

Suddenly they heard a noise in the street, as if of a large throng of people approaching. A servant whispered that it was Jesus, the Nazarene, with His disciples, passing through the city.

Jesus, the Nazarene! Feared and despised by Jairus and all the priestly class throughout Israel, who were jealous of his great popularity with the masses, and fearful of their own future unless some way could be found to put a stop to Him.

Jairus' face hardened. True, he could find no real fault with the teachings or conduct of the Nazarene. True too, whatever He was, Jesus did have great power of healing. This Jairus knew of a certainty. He looked down at his little daughter, breathing her last. Only for a moment did he wrestle with his pride. Quickly he left the room and dashed into the street, his robes flying as his sandaled feet pounded along the cobbled stones.

Urgently, desperately he pushed his way through the multitude that surrounded Jesus. Dropping to his knees at the feet of the Master, Jairus implored, "My little daughter lieth at the point of death. I pray Thee, come and lay Thy hands on her, that she may be healed; and she shall live."

In compassion Jesus agreed to go with him. But as they neared his house, a servant came running out and told Jairus it was too late, his daughter was dead.

Jesus looked at the proud ruler, his head now bowed in grief. "Be not afraid," He said, "only believe."

They proceeded on to the house, where the servants and others were already making a great tumult with their loud weeping and wailing.

"Why make ye this ado?" asked Jesus. "The girl is not dead, but sleeps."

The hired mourners laughed him to scorn. So Jesus put them out of the house. Then, with Jairus and his wife, and Peter, James and John, Jesus entered the girl's room.

Gently He took her by the hand. "Damsel, I say unto thee, arise."

Faiths Join For College

The Anglican and Roman Catholic communions here have made a unique offer to build a residential teaching college at the University of Victoria's Gordon Head campus, it was announced last night.

Archbishop Harold Sexton, Anglican primate of B.C., made the following announcement after consultation with Dr. Remi De Roo, Roman Catholic Bishop of Victoria:

"As a contribution toward the higher education of students generally and toward the University of Victoria in particular, the Anglican and Roman Catholic communions, after a thorough and friendly discussion, desire to provide for and build on the campus a residential teaching college."

RESIDENTIAL FACILITIES

It would be affiliated with the university in much the same way as similar institutions in Eastern Canada, he said.

"In the first instance, residential facilities would be provided for about 100 students, with the hope of subsequent enlargement."

"Common rooms, classrooms and dining room would be provided and a library would be established to work in association with the university library."

CULTURAL HERITAGE

"The aim of the college, briefly stated, would be to do justice in both curriculum and teaching to the Christian deposit in our cultural heritage," said Archbishop Sexton.

"To this end, the college would offer and teach the usual credit

'Rascal' Sent To Penitentiary

WHITEHORSE, Y.T. (CP)—Warren Ferrol Cottrell, described by the judge as "a delightful old rascal" without "an honest bone in your body," was sentenced to three years in penitentiary Monday on charges involving operating of a fraudulent mining company.

Mr. Justice John Parker said evidence revealed Cottrell published and circulated false statements about a mining company alleged to be located in the Little Atlin Lake area, near the B.C.-Yukon border south of here.

Eight-Year Sentence For 'Vicious' Killing

Escape Gear Didn't Work

OTTAWA (CP)—CF-100 jet planes have been grounded by the RCAF because the escape mechanism for the crew didn't function properly. Associate Defence Minister Carlin told the Commons yesterday. Modifications will take two days.

Two airmen were killed recently at St. Hubert, Que., in the crash of a CF-100. One was injured in a CF-100 crash at the same station last week.

VANCOUVER (CP)—Georgina Rustad, 32, was sent to the penitentiary for eight years Monday for what Supreme Court Justice Harold McInnes described as the "vicious" and "sadistic" slaying of her 30-year-old mother-in-law.

Before sentence was passed Mrs. Rustad told the judge: "I still plead not guilty my lord."

She showed no sign of emotion as the eight-year sentence was pronounced.

FOUND GUILTY

Mrs. Rustad was found guilty Dec. 5 by all-male jury which brought in a verdict reducing the charge to manslaughter from non-capital murder. She was convicted in the June 10, 1960 death of her crippled mother-in-law, Mrs. Thirne Rustad.

The old woman's body was found at the foot of a flight of stairs in her home, her canes crossed over her body. She had been beaten.

"The jury has found that you killed your mother-in-law," said Mr. Justice McInnes and went on to describe the attack on the old lady as

Stock Deals

Justice, B.C. Man Named Beneficiaries

TORONTO (CP)—An Ontario Supreme Court justice and a former British Columbia government superintendent of brokers were named in court Monday as beneficiaries of deals in the stock of much-investigated Northern Ontario Natural Gas Company.

Mr. Justice Leo Landreville, mayor of Sudbury when the company won a gas franchise there, and J. S. Stewart Smith, the retired B.C. official, were linked to NONG in evidence given at the preliminary hearing of NONG President Ralph K. Farris on three perjury charges.

Vancouver broker John McGraw testified the deals in 1957—before NONG stock was listed on the market—netted the judge 7,500 shares and the B.C. man 600 shares. They were worth between $10 and $13 at the time, now about $17.

A similar transaction was described by McGraw as netting 600 shares for G. Kelly McLean, a nephew of former Ontario mines minister Philip Kelly and at the time an assistant to Farris in NONG.

OTTAWA (CP)—British Columbia will get around $420,000,000 from the United States for the block of Columbia River power it is entitled to under terms of a recently negotiated agreement, informed sources said Monday. B.C. is expected to accept the proposal.

The money would cover the estimated $400,000,000 cost of the Columbia Treaty dams and leave several millions over to cover part of the cost of developing domestic power at Mica Creek.

Hostages Freed

LA PAZ, Bolivia (CP)—Nineteen persons, four of them Americans, were released Monday night after being held hostage for 10 days by striking Bolivian tin miners.

The hostages had been held at Calavi, a mining town high in the Andes, in retaliation for the arrest of two union leaders.

Earlier Monday, the tin miners voted approval of government terms for releasing the prisoners. Some miners strongly objected to the release.

Divorced

Charging cruelty, Mybil Burton yesterday obtained a Mexican divorce from actor husband Richard, paving the way for Burton to marry Elizabeth Taylor. Attorney for Miss Taylor's husband singer Eddie Fisher, met yesterday in New York with Miss Taylor's lawyer to pave way for their divorce. In Hollywood Fisher said, "I will help in any way I can." "You're a day early, chums. The 500 Fund Toy Auction is tonight," Maynard Auction Room assistant yesterday told early birds Wayne Smith, 5 (left), Paul Smith, 8, and Bobby Elliott, 10. —(William Boucher)

500 Fund Auction

It's Toy Sale Day!

Toys that have brought joy to the hearts of youngsters in the past and will again, plus toys that are new, will go under the auctioneer's hammer tonight.

These are the toys donated by citizens of Greater Victoria for auction in Maynard's 500 Fund Toy Auction, which starts tonight at 7:30 p.m. in Maynard's Auction Rooms, 733 Johnson Street.

Auctioneer Dan Bradley, for the third year in a row, will be knocking down the wide selection of toys to the highest bidders.

Citizens bidding on the toys will be getting a bargain in more than one way. They will be getting something to delight their youngsters when they find the toys under the trees and they will know that all proceeds from the auction will go to swell the 500 Fund and bring joy to Greater Victoria's 500 most needy families.

Maynard's also donate their services and use of the auc-

Kidnap Victim 'Detective'

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—How blind-folded Frank Sinatra Jr. coolly played detective to discover leads that led the FBI to his kidnap hideout was disclosed yesterday. (See story on Page 5.)

The 19-year-old, nervous and in darkness, counted stairs, memorized airplane sounds and walking distances, and—in a moment when his eyes were uncovered—spotted the name of a hamburger stand on a wrapper.

Frank Sinatra Sr. had reported Saturday after the case broke that his son provided information on the Canoga Park house where his son was held captive.
